HAVER-TRAW brick find a ready sale all along the Atlantic coast. They are well suited to the seashore requirements, and are found able to exclude moisture much better than many other makes. Yet is there any solid reason why a good sea coast trade could not be built up in Philadelphia brick?

And now Philadelphia should fall into line and give the elective franchise on educational matters to its women. The sentiment is a growing one, and the sooner we surround our schools in their entirety with woman's influence the better. With the right to vote extended to the women of Philadelphia, rum sellers and men of like ilk would have a poor chance to become officers in our educational system.

SOME future city councilmanic body will inevitably have to take the tax bill by the horns and put up rates. Short-sighted economy may be the most agreeable at present. A $2.10 rate is a necessity. Urgent improvements demand it. The Walnut Street bridge scheme is only one of many. The question of a future water supply has only been put off a few years. Our patchwork policy does not recognize the grand future before the Quaker City. The problem of rapid transit also can be postponed only awhile. The urgency will come upon us with greater force. True municipal statesmanship dictates a higher tax rate and increased expenditures on absolutely necessary work.

To Perforate Glass.

In drilling glass, stick a piece of stiff clay or putty on the part where you wish to make the hole. Make a hole in the putty the size you want the hole, reaching to the glass, of course. Into this hole pour a little molten lead, when, unless it is very thick glass, the piece will immediately drop out.

A Boston Scheme.

A Boston lady is authority for the statement that a company is being formed in that city, with a capital of $2,000,000, to engage in building operations on a gigantic scale. The stockholders will be builders already in business and in good financial standing. It is anticipated that with such combined facilities they will be able to procure material at cheaper rates and work to better advantage generally. Of course the main object will be to maintain high prices and keep expenses down, the reverse of the present system of individual effort.

Use More Stone.

While our lumber districts are being rapidly depleted, not only by the increasing demand for lumber, but also by means of the destructive forest fires which occur with such alarming frequency, it is a source of consolation to reflect that we shall not lack for building material as long as the earth remains. The vast resources of America's stone quarries may be said to have only just begun to be developed. There is probably no computing the value and extent of the wealth which still lies undiscovered in the earth in the form of granite, sandstone, marble, and perhaps some new and more beautiful building stone than any now known. There are probably few localities in this country which do not possess somewhere in their vicinity some kind of stone suitable for building purposes.

While we deeply regret the increasing scarcity of lumber, and should be very sorry to see the predicted lumber famine realized, yet we would rejoice to see stone more largely used in the structures of the day. No material is so appropriate for churches, none so lends itself to the expression of that calm dignity and majestic repose required in ecclesiastical architecture, as grand and enduring stone.

A more general use of stone as a building material would soon cause a decrease in its price as to bring it within reach of the masses. Stone is the most satisfactory and suitable material for the construction of all public and heavy buildings.

MOVEMENT OF THE MONUMENT.

Delicate Instruments which Detect the Slightest Oscillations.

Great care is taken to note the movements of the shaft, for it does move. The law of contraction and expansion of material by heat and cold operates here as well as elsewhere. When the sun shines full on the eastern face in the morning the stones on that side expand and throw the shaft slightly to the west. Then the sun goes around to the south and the apex of the monument makes a corresponding swing to the north. As the orb creeps about the sky to its final setting place in the evening the glittering point on top of the monument makes a contra-movement around half a circle, gradually settling back to its normal position after the rays of the sun have lost their power.

This movement has never been calculated, but is undoubtedly very slight. The wind, too, has an effect upon the structure. From the center of gravity of the shaft, located 174 feet and 10 inches from the floor is a cross beam, from which is suspended a fine steel wire, protected by a galvanized iron tube, about four inches in diameter. This hangs to the floor at the north-west corner of the elevator well. At the bottom is a plumb bob weighing 25 pounds, suspended by means of the wire, and hanging in water. An iron cylinder protects the instrument from injury, and a little iron house about four feet high keeps off the draught. Through the cylinder is a telescopic eyepiece, in one end of which are two vertical wires about one-quarter of an inch apart. When a candle is held at an opening in the side of the box, and the eye is applied to the outside end of the tube, the plumb line can be seen—a fine line between the vertical marks.

Any movement in the shaft is recorded by a corresponding movement in the line. When the structure is at rest and in its normal position, the line hangs still, midway between the others, but when the shaft is disturbed by the action of the wind it sways back and forth like the pendulum of a clock, always coming to rest in the center. This is observed every day, and if the custodian should ever notice the line hanging still at any point outside of the two cross lines he will then know that the monument has been permanently moved from its level position. Until then, however, no one need be alarmed by the oscillations of the shaft from the action of the wind or the influence of the sun.—Washington Star.

The Motive Power of the World.

The statistical office of the German government has recently published some interesting particulars on the present state of mechanical power, from which we select the following: "Four-fifths of the engines working at present have been built during the last twenty-five years. The total steam-engine power of the United States represents 7,500,000 horse-power; of Great Britain, 7,000,000; Germany, 4,500,000; France, 3,000,000; Austria, 1,500,000. In these numbers the power of locomotives is not included these number 105,000, and represent a total energy of 3,000,000 horse-power. This, added to the other engines, produces a total of 46,000,000 horse-power for the entire globe. Taking an engine horse-power as equal to the power of three actual horses, and a horse as equal to seven men, the steam engines of the earth equal approximately the laboring power of 1,000,000,000 of men, which is more than double the entire working population of the earth. The total population of the globe is calculated at nearly 1,500,000, two-thirds of which, including children, are not engaged in any mechanical work at all. We must, however, take into consideration that the use of steam power is up to the present almost exclusively in the hands of Europeans and their descendants in the New World, and that Asiatics, who form by far the greater part of the earth's population, up to the present hardly use it at all. Bearing this in mind, we shall not be far out by concluding that the mechanical power of Western nations has been increased six-fold by the invention of the steam engine, while the productiveness of this power in manufacture has been further increased by all kinds of manufacturing machinery."

The Right Use of Terra-Cotta.

The assertion that terra-cotta ought to be used in small pieces like bricks, because it is a sort of a brick, and not in large pieces that might be mistaken for stones, is an idle assertion and a mischievous one, for it would limit its profitable use. If it fulfils the purpose for which it is wanted, what does it signify whether it is like stone or brick? What can it matter whether a soft material becomes hard by artificial or natural processes? We want a certain form—in one case it is moulded, in the other, cut, for use or appearance the result is the same. Why should we be troubled with plausible theories which puzzle the weak, and attempt to limit at once our art and our use? If a material is unfit for the use to which it is applied it will not be used; but if it is fit, it is ridiculous to prove from "true principles" that it ought not to be used. Take, for instance, a cornice. The line of argument is this: A cornice is a stone structure, and a deep cornice can only be made of large stones. Terra-cotta is nothing more than brick, and, therefore, ought to be small, and consequently is not adapted to large cornices. I reply that terra-cotta can be and is made in large pieces, and that cornices are made of it, and that in every respect it fulfils its practical and artistic purpose.—The American Architect.

The Mechanics' Lien Law of 1887 Declared Unconstitutional.

THE decision rendered by Chief Justice Gordon last Wednesday declaring unconstitutional the Act of 1887, designed to give mechanics and laborers employed upon a building the right to file a lien for wages against the building, and providing that sub-contractors, mechanics or laborers must file their claims within sixty days; also that a man who furnishes material must give notice within ten days after the material is delivered, before filing his claim, has excited much interest and comment. The Act of 1887 was called in question, by a suit brought by H. C. Gearing against John E. Haygood, by which Mr. Gearing sought to recover $708.92 for lumber furnished. As a portion of this lumber was delivered previous to the passage of the Act of 1887, and the plaintiff failed to comply with the provision of the act in the matter of notice to the owner of the house, Judge Stowe struck off the lien, when the question was submitted to him, but his decision did not touch upon the constitutionality of the act, which Chief Justice Gordon has declared unconstitutional. It is expected that the Chief Justice will hand down a written opinion in a short time, which will be waited for with considerable interest by those who will be affected by its provisions, and they will now be compelled to look for protection to the old mechanic lien laws prior to the act of 1887.

The candidate is then appointed Regierungs Baumeister (government engineer). Intending mechanical engineers have a somewhat different course of study. They commence with a year's apprenticeship in an engineer's works; then follow in succession two years at the High school, the preliminary examination, two years of practice, one year for passing the second examination—eight years in all. At the end of this probation, the candidate is engaged on temporary work at a salary of $2.50 or $3.00 a day. Five years later, he may expect a permanent post.

Building & Real Estate Notes.

J. E. & A. L. Pennock, 305 Walnut street, have been awarded the contract for the Kaighns Point ferry.

Mr. A. J. Jordan has purchased the plot on the west side of 26th street, 151 feet N. of Oxford street, for $25,000.

At Fox Chase, (P. O. station V), the contract for a new school-house and hall has been awarded to Joseph Ashley.

L. Flynn, of Collegeville, will build two frame houses. John Enoch of that place has the contract.

A parish building will likely be erected on the property adjoining All Saints' Protestant Episcopal church.

The Quaker City Cold Storage and Warehouse Company will probably erect a building for cold storage and warehouse purposes. Among those interested are Messrs. Nice & Schreiber, J. O. Paul & Co., Hunter & Drennen, J. B. Habicker & Son, McDonald & Co., Bennett & Thorn, and many others.

Select Council Bill No. 34 provides that the sum of $5 per foot front shall be charged for permits which are issued for vaults to be built to within three feet of the curb line, and $25 per foot if built to curb line. The above is now the law.

Real estate brokers and others having farms for sale of 300 acres or over should submit them to the committee having in charge the selection of a site and the erection of school buildings in accordance with the will of the late John M. George of Overbrook, as a site has not been selected.

Samuel G. Dickson, Esq., will erect two double brick cottages at 58th st and Elmwood ave.

The triangular plot of land bounded on the north by Huntingdon st. on the east by 13th st, and on the west by the Reading R R, has been purchased by the elevated for depot purposes, for $35,000. The plot was purchased a short time since for $20,000, and the owner had already commenced the erection of a number of houses.

Summary of Last Issue.

The number of improvements for which permits were issued, reported in our issue of November 5th, was 108. The transfers of property numbered 345, amounting to $1,790,966.67, of which, $1,362,726.67 was the cash consideration, and $428,240 the mortgage consideration. A further sum of $5,048 is to be added for ground rents. The properties sold at auction amounted to $107,345.50 with an incumbrance of $4,480.

Recent Decisions.

IN RELATION TO MATTERS CONCERNING REAL ESTATE AND COMMERCIAL LAW.

Decided by the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania.

BANKS.—It is against public policy to permit a bank that has received money from a depositor, credited him therewith upon its books, and thereby entered into an implied contract to honor his check, to allege that the money deposited belongs to some one else. This may be done by an attaching creditor, or by the true owner of the fund, but the bank is estopped by its own act.

Where plaintiff deposited with the defendant bank a sum of money to the credit of himself as "W. J. Alexander, Deputy Treasurer," and the bank paid an over draft of the County Treasurer therewith, held, that as between the bank and the depositor, the money belonged to the latter, that the fact that it was deposited to the credit of "W. J. Alexander, Deputy Treasurer," did not ear mark it as County money, and the bank had no right to pay any of said sum upon check of the County Treasurer, or to deny its depositor's check. Bank v. Alexander, May 21st 1888.

DEVISE.—A will containing the provision that "after the payment of all my just debts and funeral expenses my real and personal estate be disposed of as follows: It is my will that my real estate situate in the borough of B., subject to the payments hereinafter directed be divided as follows" (naming the devisees) followed by pecuniary legacies to the amount of $1600, and a gift of "all the remainder of my personal property," does not, as a whole, charge the reality in such a manner as to exempt the personality from the payment of the debts, funeral expenses and legacies. Mann's Appeal, May 21st, 1888.

FRAUD ON CREDITORS.—Where the accommodation endorser of a promissory note, for which mules are sold, and delivered to the maker, (upon an agreement that they shall be the endorser's property until the note is paid by the maker) is compelled to pay the note himself but never has possession of the mules, the retention of possession by the maker is a fraud in law and his creditors having no knowledge of the agreement are entitled to levy upon and sell the mules in execution. Shaeffer v. Zech, May 25th, 1888.

MORTGAGEE'S RIGHTS.—Where a mortgagee in possession at the time of the location of a railroad through the mortgaged premises, takes from the railroad company a bond for damages and afterwards buys the land and has the damages assigned to him by the former owner, the railroad company cannot in proceeding to assess the damages avail itself as a defence of the fact that the plaintiff was not the owner at the time the road was located. R. R. Co., v. Playford, May 20th 1888.

Proprietor of Phila. "Record."*

PHILADELPHIA, MONDAY, NOV. 12, 1888.

For the convenience of members of the Master Builders' Exchange, we have secured Box No. 199 at that place, where any communications for publication may be left.

THE new Edison Electric Light plant on Sansom street above Ninth, cost $150,000. One thousand tons of coal will be stored on the fifth floor. The offices will be prudently located on the floor above. The building is a monster affair, and is made to last. In all, the company are putting out nearly one million dollars.

ARCHITECTS and builders if consulted this week as to building trade prospects, would no doubt be inclined to give a much brighter view than last week, bright as the reports were then. The election has strengthened confidence all around, and even the defeated voters feel that business prospects are better to-day than two weeks ago.

THERE is an actual scarcity of good securities in all directions, and this accounts for the dullness in stock operations. Holders of good railway securities will not sell, and poor ones they will not have. Holders of city "sixes" want nothing better, and even four and five per cent. bonds are held on to as though there would be trouble in getting as good.

THE room-renters propose to organize to protect their interest and if possible secure some more efficient legislative protection against dishonest tenants. There is, by no means small class of room renters, who need kicking out before they enter a room, and if our small landlords can bring these gentry up with a round turn, they will be rendering themselves and others a good service.

YEARS ago when iron, lumber, brick and building material generally were high, there were excuses for poor, cheap and bad work in house and factory construction, but now, the purchaser of inferior material has no justification. The tendency is in the direction of improvement. Competition is taking that course. Better products, better goods for the same money is now the trade watchword.

NEXT winter and spring promises to be a busy one in exterior and interior alterations of dwellings and stores. Old down town homesteads are quietly surrendering to trade, retaining only their brick walls, giving up all else to the voracious demands of the god of trade. A great many new fronts are contemplated on the streets between Vine and South. Extensive rear additions will also be made to give more space.

AS to real estate interests collapsing it is ridiculous to ask. In the first place, values are on a solid footing. Properties are owned by their ostensible owners. But few heavy mortgages are hanging over builders and operators in real estate. This fact is shown by our statistical statement last week. Most transactions in real estate are for cash, less than 20 per cent. remaining under mortgage. This is a good showing.

IF, as John M. Sharp says, the natural increase of population calls for 7,000 new houses each year, we can count on as much building next year as this. The demand of new comers will be not less than one thousand. Philadelphia is attracting more and more outsiders, drawn here by business inducements and necessities. A business depression would cause a doubling up of families and create a surplus of house room in a few months.

THIS year there has been a slight falling off in church building in city and country districts. It is probable that fewer large office buildings will be started next season, as there are signs that the present supply will cover existing office requirements, as yet there is no surplus. Over one-half of the offices in the new Girard Trust building at Broad and Chestnut have been taken. The offices in the Keystone Bank, at Chestnut and Juniper are going fast, and at good prices. Only a half dozen rooms remain untenanted at the Drexel Building. The smaller office buildings are all pretty well tenanted, and the new ones going up are "spoken for." Yet there are limits and the investors in these large structures are men who do not leap in the dark.

AN abundance of capital is very necessary in business operations, but confidence is at times of even more value than capital. Sometimes the absence of capital is not an absolute hindrance to the prosecution of enterprises, but the absence of confidence paralyzes enterprise and frightens capital. Just now we are favored with an abundance of capital and an abundance of confidence. Capital which in former years went into railroad construction or into the vortex of stock speculation is now quietly seeking employment in industrial channels, and in the avenues which expanded industrial activity create.

It is quite probable that a number of capacious three, four and perhaps five-story buildings will be erected in the business sections of the city. Some builders believe they will rent well in view of the need of such houses to serve as a medium between boarding houses and hotels. The Hamilton building on Walnut street, near Broad is a sample of the sort of houses that are needed. Our floating population is increasing. The accommodations in our old style dwellings do not altogether suit the tastes and pockets of the luxury-loving people of to-day. They do not want hotel life, nor are they pleased with the regulation boarding house. Specially designed houses to accommodate our well-to-do floating population would be easily rented and sold, and filled with well-paying tenants, but these houses must be near to business.

THE ordering out of the Siemens Lamps from the public squares is not just the proper thing to do, particularly as the intention is to go back to the old gas jets which only serve to show the darkness more clearly. There are 166 lamps to go, and 166 miserable, flickering gas jets will take their place. These Siemens Lamps are all right, and if they were properly trimmed and attended to, but the only attention the city authorities have seen fit to give them is what the square attendants could or would give, in a bungling and careless manner. The Siemens Lamps, if they needed a test, have not had a "square" test—no pun intended. The company supplying these lamps offered to put in an improvement known as the Gordon, at a cost of $8,000, which would result in an annual saving of eight million feet of gas, or $8,000 per year. But no, the improvement was refused, and the better light was cast aside. The cost of Edison lights, it is stated, would be some $13,000 for the squares per annum.

Has not somebody been just a little too smart in this business.

Congressional Library.

Among the unfortunate features in the appointment of the Chief of Engineers to take charge of the new Congressional Library building is that, according to an interview with General Casey, reported by the Washington Star, no provision is to be made for the future growth of the library.

General Casey is reported to have said that the plans which are being proposed will contemplate the expenditure of one cent beyond the limit fixed by law. Whether the building when completed will answer the requirements of the Congressional Library or not is a matter which he has nothing to do with. He intends to make the building complete, and as much of an addition to the architectural beauties of the city as $4,000,000 will permit. He intends to follow architecturally the original Smithsonian plan, but it will, of necessity, be considerably reduced. The plan of the interior originally agreed upon will also be followed. The plans will not make any provisions for the future growth of the library. Being a building complete in itself, although there may be plenty of room, no additions can be made to it without injuring materially the architectural effect. If in the future additional room is required, it will be necessary to construct another building, and this will require more ground.

Librarian Spafford is reported to be satisfied with the change of plans, but is said to have stated that he would be contented with a building which would afford provisions for the growth of the next twenty years.

Possibly Congress may think it wisdom to erect separate and distinct library buildings at the rate of five in a century, but we doubt the economy of such a tion. We must confess to fail to see why, with excellent architectural effect, the building now proposed could not be erected with the view of the addition of using in the same manner as the Boston Museum of Art, or the American Museum of Natural History in this city.

A library with an annual accession of twenty or thirty thousand volumes, thousands of pamphlets, musical compositions, maps, charts, engravings, chronos, lithographs, and a multitude of articles of the graphic arts in the Copyright Department, partakes more of the character of a museum of literature, art and science, than a library in the strict sense of the term. Such a structure should, under no circumstances, be inconsiderately limited nor unduly circumscribed in extent and capacity, but should be built in accordance with the exigencies of the vast and varied collection to be accommodated and the conveniences required for its best uses.

The place should therefore be made to meet these demands and upon a comprehensive scale.

The law requires that the plans prepared under the direction of General Casey shall be subject to the inspection and approval of the Secretaries of War and Interior, but they will doubtless be considered by Congress before work is commenced. The matter will be brought to the attention of Congress in the annual report of the Chief of Engineers, if not as a special measure before the report is submitted. Congress will undoubtedly therefore have ample opportunity to pass upon the revised project. To architects, however, the views of Congressmen or members of the President's cabinet on the architectural excellence of designs would hardly be considered of great value. This is a case in point which shows the advisability of the appointment of a National Art Commission to decide on the merits of designs submitted for public buildings, as proposed by the American Institute of Architects.—N. Y. Building.

To make holes in steel that is too hard to cut or file easily. Mix one ounce of sulphate of copper, quarter of an ounce of alum, half a teaspoonful of powdered salt, a gill of vinegar and twenty drops of nitric acid. This will make the hole, or if it is washed off quickly it will give a beautiful frosted appearance to the metal.

The Canal of Joseph.

How many of the engineering works of the nineteenth century will there be in existence in the year 6000? Very few, we fear, and still fewer those that will continue in that far off age to serve a useful purpose. Yet there is at least one great undertaking, conceived and executed by an engineer, which during the space of 4000 years has never ceased its office, and on which the life of a fertile province absolutely depends to-day. We refer to the Bahr Jousuf, the canal of Joseph, built, according to tradition, by the son of Jacob, and not the least of the many blessings he conferred on Egypt during the years of his prosperous rule. This canal took its rise from the Nile at Asuit, and ran nearly parallel with it for nearly 250 miles, creeping along under the western cliffs of the Nile valley with many a bend and winding, until at length it gained an eminence, as compared with the river bed, which enabled it to turn westward through a narrow pass and enter a district which was otherwise shut off from the fertilizing floods on which all vegetation in Egypt depends. Just as the modern miller diverts a part of the water of a river, and leads it in a gentle flowing stream along an almost level course, until he can deliver it on to the top of a high wheel whose lower edge revolves above the river, so Joseph prepared a smoothly-flowing channel, of which the northern end stood seven feet above low Nile, while at the southern end it was at an equal elevation with the river. Through this cut there ran a perennial stream which watered a province named the Fayoum, endowing it with fertility and supporting a large population. In the time of the annual flood a great part of the canal was under water, and when the river's current would rush in a more direct course into the pass, carrying with it the rich silt which takes the place of manure, and keeps the soil in a state of constant productivity.

All this with the exception of the tradition that Joseph built the canal, can be verified to-day, and is not mere supposition or rumor. Until eight years ago it was firmly believed that the design had always been limited to an irrigation scheme, larger no doubt than that now in operation, as shown by the traces of abandoned canals and by the slow aggregation of waste water which had accumulated in the Birket el Querun but still essentially the same in character. It is true that there were Mohammedan traditions, which related that the part performed by the canal in irrigation was merely a subsidiary portion of its functions, and that it served a much grander purpose, one that ranked among the greatest, if it were not the greatest, of the many marvels of Egypt. But the western mind is apt to despise the tales of the Orient, finding the modicum of truth they contain overlaid with such an intolerable amount of exaggeration and poetical hyperbole that it does not usually repay the laborious process of winnowing, which is necessary to separate from the fiction with which it is associated. Other accounts there were, written by Greek and Roman historians, such as Herodotus, Strabo, Mutianus and Pliny and repeated in monkish legends or portrayed in the maps of the middle ages, which agreed with the folk-lore of the district. These tales explain that the canal dug by the ancient Israelite served to carry the surplus waters of the Nile into an extensive lake lying south of the Fayoum, and so large that it not only modified the climate, tempering the arid winds of the desert, and converting them into balmy airs which nourished the vines and the olives into a fullness and a fragrance unknown in any part of the country, but also added to the good supply of the land such immense quantities of fish that the royal prerogative of the right of piscary at the great weir was valued at 500,000 annually. This lake was said to be 450 miles round, and to be navigated by a fleet of vessels, while the whole circumference was the scene of industry and prosperity.—Engineering.

Big Tax-Payers in New York.

On the 3d of October, 1887, Receiver of Taxes, George W. McLean, received from the Consolidated Gas Company, $223,310; estate of W. H. Vanderbilt, $71,124; New York Central Railroad, $343,613; Mutual Life Insurance Company, $529,843; Standard Oil Company, $28,709; estate of Robert Coelet, $807,396; John Jacob Astor, $238,040; Wm Astor, $170,000. Real estate owned by the city rarely comes into market, nor is it available to any great extent for the reduction of taxation. In 1871 A. J. Bleeker, A. H. Muller, and Cortland Palmer were appointed by the Commissioners of the Sinking Fund to appraise all real property belonging to the city and county of New York. This they did, including parks, public buildings, station and engine houses, wharves, docks, markets, etc., and estimated the value of the whole at $244,000,000, basing the estimate on the number of lots, 25 x 100 feet, into which it might be divided. Central Park, together with Manhattan Square, on which is the Seventh Regiment Armory, was appraised at $73,275,000; Madison Square at $2,253,000; Union Square, $2,290,000; Washington Square, $2,230,000; and Reservoir Square at $2,342,000. In 1887 the Commissioners of Taxes and assessments estimated the value of the city property in New York exempt from taxation at $16,550,000; of the churches at $42,230,300; and of schools, charities, etc., at $34,231,620—a grand total of $283,853,950.—Harper's for November.

A Word About Elevators.

There are not a few commodious buildings in this city where well lighted and attractive offices are tenantless and why, chiefly because the owners consider it a useless expense to put in an elevator. If they would but count the cost they would act differently. Let them for instance figure up what their idle offices would bring if rented and compare this loss with the cost of an elevator. There are buildings in this city depreciating yearly only because they are without the convenience of elevators. The rents in the new office buildings are what they are, not simply because of the saving in time and labor effected by elevators. Landlords are already complaining of a downward tendency in rents, yet the remedy is in their own hands. It does not necessarily follow that if all old buildings were supplied with elevators, that therefore all the vacant offices would find tenants, but it is safe to say many tenants would remain where they are and others in less comfortable quarters would find their way to these larger buildings. The cost of elevator work has declined within a year or two and there is no good reason why scores of buildings now without them should continue to depreciate in value for want of them.

Another Improvement

No Architect engaged, contract not let at time of writing.

A new and novel method of moving elevators is reported by the Boston Commercial Bulletin as in use at the Mason Building in that city. The elevators there are run by hydraulic cylinders. In place of the rope which formerly opened the valve a small motor is now used. This motor is connected to the cars by wires. Three push buttons, one to start it up, one to stop the car and one to lower it, connect with an automatic regulator, and the machine is a success.

Building & Real Estate Notes.

A florist's wareroom is to be built at the cor. Broad and Rodman streets. The old building will be torn down.

Frank McAvoy, brickmaker, and the old Lehigh State Company, have made application for membership to the Master Builders' Exchange.

The Knickerbocker Ice & Coal Co. have broken ground on Willow Grove avenue, near the Reading railroad, Chestnut Hill, for its new building before reported.

Archbishop Ryan has been in search of a piece of ground in the neighborhood of Seventieth and Woodland avenue, upon which to erect a Roman Catholic hospital.

Rev. Daniel O'Connor has been instructed by Archbishop Ryan to collect the necessary funds for a new church. Where the building will be erected has not been determined upon.

A warehouse is to be erected at 333 S. Water street some time in the near future, to take the place of the one destroyed by fire on November 6. No plans or definite arrangements have been made.

Among those gentlemen who have been appointed as trustees by L. V. Williamson for his new house are Messrs. D. B. Cummings, Stephen A. Caldwell, D. B. Conneys and John Wanamaker.

At Oak Lane, there is some prospect of a new church being established under the name of St. Martin's. In case of this being consummated, a new building will probably be erected. T. H. Asbury and other prominent gentlemen are interested.

An ordinance providing for the widening of Walnut street from the Delaware to the Schuylkill river, to 60 feet in width, has been signed by Mayor Fitter. This is an increase in width of ten feet, and hereafter all new buildings erected and fronts of old ones when altered or rebuilt must be set back five feet.

C. M. Baker has purchased the old Recreation Park, at Twenty-fourth and Ridge ave., upon which he will erect a number of houses somewhat similar to those already built by him in that section. The frontage on 25th street is 400 feet, the same on Columbia ave. and 24th street, and 300 feet on Ridge ave.

At the Master Builders' Exchange may be seen the plans and specifications for the labor and materials required in the extension and completion of the granite wharf on the Custom House lot at Charleston, S. C. Bids to be sent to Will A. Freret, Supervising Architect, Treasury Department, Washington, D. C., until December 1st.

The Board of Education decided at its meeting on Monday evening to ask councils for an appropriation of a million and a half dollars for school purposes, and $27,000 more for new school houses. The money is needed for the erection of a new Boy's High School at Broad and Jefferson streets, the estimated cost of which is $150,000.

The Spring Garden Hall and the property adjoining, which is to be used for the Girl's Normal School will cost, after completion, $200,000, and the additions, alterations, and the purchase of new ground for the Manual Training School at Seventeenth and Wood, will cost $50,000. Mr. Austin, the architect for the Board, thinks that either six or seven new school houses will be erected next year in various parts of the city. The average cost for schools built this year was $56000 each.

The New Wards.

By a decision of Judge Allison rendered on Wednesday last, the 25th and 28th Wards were divided and two new wards given to the city, namely the 32nd and 33rd. The old 25th ward embraced the following territory; along Lehigh avenue from the Delaware River to Germantown avenue, thence to the Southern line of the 22nd ward, which is the Frankford and Wingohocking Creeks, thence to the river Delaware, thence to the place of beginning.

The new 25th ward starts from the intersection of Lehigh and Kensington avenues; at this point Lehigh avenue takes a sharp turn and runs nearly south. This avenue is followed until the Delaware river is reached, then along the river front to Frankford Creek, along Frankford Creek to Kensington avenue and thence to the place of beginning.

The new 28th ward is about one third as large as the old 25th ward. The 33rd ward is the balance of the old 25th ward, and commences at the intersection of Lehigh and Kensington avenues, then along Kensington avenue to Frankford Creek and Wingohocking Creek, thence to Germantown avenue, along Germantown avenue to Lehigh avenue, thence to the place of beginning.

The old 28th ward contained about eight square miles and was bounded by the Schuylkill river on the west, thence to School House lane, thence to Wissahickon avenue, thence to Roberts avenue, thence to Germantown avenue, thence to Susquehanna avenue, thence to Eleventh street, thence to Montgomery avenue, thence to the Schuylkill river. The 32nd ward only comprises the lower end of the old 28th ward, and is about two miles long from west to east, and about a third of a mile from north to south, and is contained between the following boundaries. On the north by Susquehanna avenue from the Schuylkill river to Eleventh street, on the east by Eleventh street, on the south by Montgomery avenue, from Eleventh street to the Schuylkill river, and on the west by the Schuylkill river.

LITERATURE on Interior Decorations is assuming quite pretentious proportions and artistic talent is being developed of no mean calibre. Architects in our larger cities are often obliged to consult these specialists as to the character and cost of decorative work in the interior of dwellings.

PHILADELPHIA, MONDAY, NOV. 19, 1888.

For the convenience of members of the Master Builders' Exchange, we have secured Box No. 199 at that place, where any communications for publication may be left.

NEXT year the public will have an opportunity for judging to what extent business is checked and obstructed by needless agitations concerning the duties that should be raised on imports. Already manufacturers are preparing to enlarge their plants and to increase productions under the supposition that duties are to stay where they are.

In our municipal affairs we manage to get along with but few lawyers. If we had a few less lawyers in Congress and a few more business men, it would be better for the business interests of the country. There would be less demagogic agitations that unsettle business. It was the lawyer-politicians that precipitated the tariff campaign that ended so ingloriously for them.

It has been intimated that 15 per cent. at least of the productive capacity of the country has been idle this year. If so, this disposes of the oft repeated statement that in six months sufficient goods and supplies could be manufactured to meet all requirements for twelve months. Even under a 15 per cent. restriction, stocks have been kept even. The country is practically without a surplus, hence prices are strong and manufacturing interests are encouraged. This restriction has been due in large part to the general organization of producers and middlemen. In years past, on account of lack of such organization, our productions have gorged trade channels, and depression has followed. Under present conditions, we are able to avoid these evils.

It is estimated that some $60,000 were expended last year by christian church organizations for stained glass windows which were made in Europe, and which were imported to this country free of duty, while on the other hand, our own stained glass workers are taxed at the rate of two cents per square foot, or about 35 to 40 per cent. on every dollars worth of sheet stained glass they are compelled to import, because the desirable colors are not made in this country. If the church organizations of this country were compelled through the inefficiency of our American stained glass workers to seek foreign aid for their church decorations, there might seem some justification for this liberal patronage of the foreign product, but when it is known that we have even in our own city a number of firms that are capable of producing work equal to the best mechanical efforts of the foreign houses, besides which their artistic conceptions in both classic and mediæval art equal the best of the foreign masters, such pretenses are shown to be mere shams. So utterly enraptured with everything foreign in stained glass work seems our church people that we quote the instance of the handsome windows of St. Mary's church of this city, which were the conceptions and work of a firm of this city, and which for purposes incomprehensible, were duly accredited by a reputable city journal to a firm in Munich. Of course the representative of the paper was deceived by some one who no doubt thought that it would sound more grand to claim for the win lows the best efforts of European masters. The windows were particularly fine, and justly merited all the praise that were bestowed upon them, but our purpose in this article is to point out the absurdity of our tariff system which imposes a heavy tax on sheet stained glass, while it admits free of duty under the false plea of sacred things, foreign products purchased with American money, most of which represents the pennies and nickels gleaned by the contribution box from American working men and women.

SAWDUST is being used by some builders for mortar instead of sand. It is said to answer well, as it is one half lighter than sand it has some advantages when used on ceilings. Mortar made of quicklime and sawdust, mixed with cement, does well for brick or stone work.

BRICK machinery makers, are improving their machinery with as much success as the engineers are improving the working capacity of the steam engine, for a given output, brick machinery can now be had which will give 25 per cent greater product, than three years ago.

SO LONG as money is abundant for business purposes, the rate of interest even, and risk at a minimum point, new enterprises and new ventures will be rushed into with a sort of blind confidence. The volume of currency has been increased upwards of two hundred million dollars from all sources within three years, and hence the great industrial and commercial activity. The profits on money lending have declined. Commercial failures are relatively fewer. Merchants and jobbers report a general punctuality in the meeting of current obligations. So much for an abundant supply of money. Old time financiers kept up an incessant cry for a return to the gold standard, overlooking the fact that the value of money is not so much in its intrinsic value as in what can be done with it. Currency, even without a gold or silver basis, stimulates enterprise and starts wheels turning. The fact must not be lost sight of that the present healthful condition is maintained artificially, viz.: by the friendly action of the government in purchasing its own unmaturing obligations.

THE Board of Education has done its duty in declaring that the amount of $1,500,000 is needed for public school purposes. The Board has gone very carefully into the question and has specified locations where additional facilities are absolutely required. The sum of $50,000 is asked for to enlarge the Manual Training School at Seventeenth and Race streets. Also $150,000 for the Boys' High School, at Twenty-seventh and Jefferson streets. It is to be regretted that the urgency for additional school buildings should have been permitted to become so great. Yet what probability is there that the necessary expenditures will be made? Past extravagance has created an interest debt of between four and five million dollars annually. The tax rate of necessity must be advanced. If a sufficient increase were made over the $1.85 rate to permit the needed outlay for school purposes, the tax payer would not complain.

THE general expectation in trade circles is that there will be an increase in the volume of business this winter over last winter, because of the restricted production that has been maintained all season, the small stock in hand and the possibilities of a general covering of requirements.

AN idea has been developed in Germany in the shape of the manufacture of mortar by machinery in large quantities, to be delivered to contractors or individuals as required for use. About 2,000,000 barrels were disposed of in Berlin on this plan alone last year.

Not one tenth of the elaborately prepared and finely executed drawings of dwellings and public buildings published from time to time in our architectural and building journals are deserving of the space and place they occupy. Experienced architects dump most of such stuff unceremoniously into the waste paper basket, much of this work is done by alleged architects who have more time to devote to such work than they are obliged to devote to the construction of dwellings.

One dollar at 21, is worth $120 at 90, and $100 spent in foolery and finery before five and twenty is simply $3000 thrown away from that provision which should be made for the time when work must be a burden.

COUNTRY builders are inclined to adopt the rule of painting shingle roofs. There is no good reason why they should not be painted in harmony with the rest of the house.

The strength of Iron.

The main strength of American wrought iron is 35,900 pounds; English 43,741. Ultimate extension of wrought iron is one-six-hundredth part of its length. The working strain is from one-sixth to one-fourth the main strength. Resistance to flexure acting evenly over the surface, equals one-half the tensile strength. Bars of wrought iron will expand or contract 151, 200th of their length, for each degree of heat. With range of temperature of this country (20 to X120°)=140°, will expand or contract 1080th part of its length, equal to a force of 20,740 pounds, or nine and a quarter tons per square inch of section. Tensile strength increases, in from one to six reheating and rollings, from 43,004 pounds to 60,823 pounds in from six to twelve, is reduced again to 43,904.

Five Decorative "Nevers."

Never put a piece of furniture into a room merely because it is new and it will fill up. Every article should have its real or apparent use; as a general thing, the necessary pieces will occupy all the space that should be allotted to furniture.

Never permit a white marble mantle to disfigure an otherwise tasteful room.

Never have a dark carpet and walls in a room that is deficient in light. Only apartments open to the outer light will stand gloomy tones in decoration.

Never hang a picture from one nail. Aside from the mere question of safety, the use of two nails, the cord stretched across them so as to come down squarely to the corner of the frame has a symmetrical effect, and makes the walls look very much more finished.

Never have a carpet patterned with gigantic roses or other actual flowers that harmonize with nothing. The colors in a carpet should, in a great measure, complete the color scheme adopted for the room.—Kaimes City Architect.

WHAT WE HEAR.

That there will be even more two-story dwellings erected next year than were put up this year.

That there will be more factory building next year than this, among the textile manufacturers and iron workers.

That it is time for another rumor to be started that the Baldwin Locomotive Works is to be removed outside of the City.

That the Plumbers' Trade School is going to be very well attended.

That next years' assessment will be $2.00 and no back down.

That the electric light companies have things fixed to work councils for big lighting contracts.

That the streets occupied with street car lines will never be paved with street car companies' money.

STEEL rails are used on some spongy soils in the West to secure a good foundation. Over 120 tons of steel beams are being put in the foundation of one building in Chicago. They are stood on edge close together and extend six to seven feet outside the columns.

In some parts of the West, especially where the winters are severe, builders and owners are taking to bricking in their frame houses for the sake of greater warmth, endurance and greater freedom from fire from exterior causes. The building is sided up with matched stuff, then a brick face wall, four inches thick is laid, tied on by spikes every sixth course.—Pittsburg Real Estate Record.

SOME time ago reference was made to the fact that a large amount of property was changing hands in and about the city for manufacturing purposes and building sites. These transfers are not decreasing in number, one of the latest is the transfer of the Delancy property on Beach and Norris streets to Win. Cramp & Sons for $70,000. The ship builders along the Delaware are all pretty well crowded with work and there is every indication that the volume of work will continue to increase. The contracts now in hand foot up between three and four million dollars. Several purchases of land are about being consummated by the ship builders in order to afford them needed room for buildings and additional machinery. The coastwise tonnage supply is low and partly in consequence of this, there is an upward tendency in freights.

Summary of Last Issue.

The number of operations reported in our issue of November 12th was 123. The transfers of property numbered 257, amounting to $1,144,011.06 of which $946,463.50 was the cash consideration and $197,547.06 the mortgage consideration. A further charge of $4,635 is to be added for ground rents which on a basis of six per cent amounts to $77,300. None of the auction houses held sale.

[ENTERED AT THE PHILADELPHIA POST OFFICE AS SECOND-CLASS MATTER.]

VOL. III.—No. 47.

PHILADELPHIA, MONDAY, NOVEMBER 26, 1888.

PRICE 15 CENTS.

TO SELL commodities and services is the objective point of all business effort and preparation. The investor in real estate seeks to sell his land, the builder to sell or rent his houses, the storekeeper to sell his goods, the railroad company to sell railroad tickets, and so on all through. But what a hum-drum life it would be if all thought and all effort were directed to mere buying and selling, transporting goods or transforming material from one condition to another for consumption. There are other things to think of as well, and other things to do. The utilitarian side of life commands our greatest consideration and attention, but there are other phases of life that cannot be neglected by the man who has a head with anything in it. "Oh, I don't need your paper. My business is to build and rent and sell houses." May be a very practical utterance, but it does not show a proper mental rounding up in the man who utters it. He is not wise even with regard to his own selfish interests who so argues and believes. Knowledge is power to day more than ever. Journalism is a mighty engine for good. Its footprints are gentle and delicate, but it leaves indelible stamps everywhere, and he who believes he can ignore its influence and aid and get along well without them, has not reflected upon and observed the great work the editors and publishers of trade and class journals especially have done to ennoble and broaden the crafts and interests they represent. The question of the business man should be "How much can I aid these enterprises?" Not how little.

MORE steel rails are being contracted for at this time than for at least twelve months. Prices have been declining and a sale was made last week in a mill in Western Pennsylvania at $26. Sales amounting last week to 60,000 tons were made and inquiries and negotiations are now pending for not less than 150,000 tons. The railroad builders have not determined upon what course to pursue, either as to the extent of construction they will enter upon next year or as to where they will place contracts. The general drift of sentiment in railroad building circles is that there will be more construction in 1889 than in 1888. The net earnings of 99,000 miles of railroad for the first ten months of this year are 1-2 per cent greater than for the same time last year. Considering all the rate warring that has been reducing earnings, this is a good showing.

SHINGLES are beating slate for roofs. Cedar are coming into more general use. Mahogany or inside finish is being used in fine residences.

THE high office building tenants will have to put up with the smoke emitted by surrounding chimneys. The Councils committee authorized to examine the matter is discharged.

THAT as many office buildings will be started next year as this may be well doubted. A number of capitalists are talking of new schemes involving hotel and office and manufacturing buildings. So far as manufactures are concerned, it is largely a question of cost of power and rent.

SHEET steel is being used for ceilings in a good many places with economic advantages. It does not buckle, crack or fall down and can be decorated and painted. It is especially well adapted for store rooms, churches, dwellings, court houses and school houses.

WHAT next! India rubber is being introduced as a road material in Europe. A street has been paved with it in Hanover. A scheme is on foot to pave some streets in Berlin with this material. It combines great elasticity with the hardness of stone; is noiseless and stands extreme heat and cold alike. It is less slippery than asphaltum.

BUILDERS in some cases are about contracting for a portion of next year's supplies of brick. Brick makers entertain the belief that their yards will be run full time all the year, and that full prices will be realized. To offset this there are a good many extensions being made and projected to brick yards and new ones are starting up.

PHILADELPHIA, MONDAY, NOV. 26, 1888.

For the convenience of members of the Master Builders' Exchange, we have secured Box No. 199 at that place, where any communications for publication may be left.

THE measly little gas jets are now back to work in the city squares. What a brilliant stroke of economy. A leather medal ought to be gotten up at once. This is making progress like the crab.

ONE of the questions which is agitating the minds of some foreign engineers is whether architects should be allowed to undertake engineering work and whether engineers should be allowed to do architectural work. That question does not concern us much in this country. Still cases are arising where engineers and architects are obliged frequently to consult together and arrange each others plans. Each profession is bound by requirements and rules which must be respected and followed. If an architect undertakes to do an engineer's work he may think he is right is but likely to make a mistake.

A MOBILE concern is turning out sapless blocks of juniper, cypress and cedar to pave the streets of that city. Red cedar pavement costs $1.50 per yard as against $3.50 to $3.75 for asphaltum. The city authorities decided on wood pavement only after consulting with the authorities in all towns where it had been in use. At Grand Rapids sapless cedar blocks have lasted seven to ten years. At Memphis thirteen miles of cypress pavement have been in use ten to twelve years. It is not conceded that it is good for heavy traffic but its advantages under a moderate traffic are that it makes but little noise and dust.

It takes considerable of a man now-a-days to ignore the shams and deceptions that have crept into trade practices and run his business on strictly legitimate methods.

We seem to be living in an age when honesty is at a discount. Tricks and trickery seems just as much a part of the stock in trade of some professional men as of the lackey, although the former designates his allotments from petty swindles by the euphonious name of commissions while the share of his more humble brother is known as a tip. The hostler is sure to condemn as outrageously bad, both the oats and hay that are served by the dealer who will not tip him and he will certainly sooner or later turn his masters patronage into the best paying source to himself. The butler is sure to know where his master or mistress can deal to the best advantage (to himself), and somehow the liar and fraud in high and low places is able to prosper on the strength of his plausible deceptions while an honest man shrinking from such hypocrisy must lose the patronage he is only too willing to serve honestly.

It is no secret that many of our oculists play upon the credulity of their patients and it is even asserted that many medical men like the oculists are paid heavy commissions for sending their prescriptions to stores where an understanding exists between the dealer and themselves. Queen & Co's., decided stand in their letter recently published in the dailies of this city against these professional? thieves, expresses not only a high standard of manhood and business integrity but justly merits the thanks of the entire community. We know of a single case where a young lady from the country employed an eminent oculist of this city at a cost of ten dollars for each visit, several visits were made and he was paid promptly each time, he finally gave her a formulation and directed her where to get it filled and he requested her to bring the glasses to him in order that he might see if they were made according to his formula. She did so, after looking at them for a minute he pronounced them perfect. She thanked him and turned away when he reminded her that there were ten dollars due and he compelled her to pay him ten dollars for that visit.

This gentleman (?) holds a high professional and social position in this city. He mistook his calling for he was cut out by nature for a bunco-steerer.

WORK is progressing on the great bridge across the Mississippi, at Memphis. One pier on the west side will be put down this winter.

A READING mechanic is getting ready for a blizzard, he has invented a snow plow for the use of railroads. Some of the railroad people have looked at it and think it is a good thing to have. The plough will throw the snow 20 feet away. There is no doubt but what our trunk lines will provide themselves with something of this sort. Had the ploughs been on hand last winter they would have saved money and time.

THE heaviest body of hemlock timber in Pennsylvania is in Elk County and a company has been formed to build a 20 mile railroad to develop it. The supply of hemlock at interior points is heavy and dealers in this city report abundant local stocks for the winter at low prices. The lumbering interests in all sections will enter the season of 1889 with heavy stocks. Southern lumber of all kinds will be abundant. Saw mill building has been going on this year with a spirit of enterprise that assures an enormous output.

THE spirit of organization seems to have taken hold of the Western architects. There is a fraternity of feeling among them which will in time lead to emulation and to the production of a finer class of work. On the other hand unprofessional competition will be gradually eliminated and better methods and higher standards followed. There is not as much fraternity of feeling manifested among Eastern architects but the conditions do not stimulate it. Possibly this is due to the fact that the extremes of architectural talent are wider apart here. The few who are eminently successful are far above fraternal association with the many who are hanging on to the outskirts of the field or on the lower rungs of the ladder. Throughout the West there is a greater equality of talent though exceptionally brilliant men are looming up.

THE real estate of the State of Pennsylvania, is in amount only a trifle more than the personal and corporate (chiefly railroad) property of our State. The proportion of private property to railroad is 17 to 14½, yet the one species of property pays almost five times as much tax as the other. The real estate outside of personal and railroad property pays $30,000,000 in round figures while the corporations pay only $6,000,000 in round figures. The people are very kind to the railroads but the railroads in turn are very little for the people. Look at Philadelphia the bulk of her textile business is transacted in New York. The product of her mills is just carried from here to New York and then distributed over the United States. The railroad has the two hauls and New York merchants have the business and its commissions.

PRICES for building material of all kinds remain uniform. Nails have been vibrating all season between $1.75 and $2.00, according to quality. Sheet iron 3½c. to 4½c. 1 inch $2.00 to $2.25. Prices for heater work have not varied during the season. Plumbers have adhered to their schedule rates. Brick have occasionally varied a little, generally upwards, when a purchaser was obliged to crowd in orders in advance of others. Lumber in retail circles has remained uniform in price throughout the season, except for poplar and cherry. Poplar has advanced of late from $2.00 to $5.00 per thousand, according to inspection, length and thickness. Cherry has fallen into strong hands and strong prices are maintained. Hemlock rules low and white pine has not recovered the strength it had early in the season. A great deal of chestnut is being used for interior finish in place of walnut which comes too high for most work.

In the early part of December bids are to be advertised for the erection of the Soldiers and Sailors Monument at Indianapolis, Ind., the work will require 100,000 cubic feet of oolitic lime stone to be taken from the quarries of that State, in blocks averaging five tons in weight each. Persons desiring to compete for the work should address the Secretary of the Commission Mr. J. F. Gookins, Indianapolis, before December 1st, who will furnish plans and specifications which may be kept until the day the proposals are opened.

Summary of Last Issue.

The number of improvements reported in our issue of November 26th, for which permits were granted was 138. The transfers of property numbered 325 amounting to $1,719,333.33, of which $1,433,118.33 was the cash consideration and $286,215 the mortgage consideration. A further sum of $6432 is to be added for ground rents which on a six per cent basis is a further charge of $107,200. The sales at public auction amounted to $48,700 with an incumbrance of $128650.

THE making of frame houses fire proof is now up for consideration in some quarters. It is proposed to encase floor beams and posts with fire proof cement, fill the wall and floor space with magnesite pipe covering material, plaster with Adamant plaster on the New Jersey Wire Cloth Company's fire proof wire lathing. Such a building it is claimed would be invulnerable to fire and would last forever.

EXTERIORS of houses above all other places require the best of material.

FIFTEEN cubic feet of gas will give as much heat as one pound of bituminous coal. Ten cubic feet of air is required for the perfect combustion of one cubic foot of gas.

A CONTEMPORARY complains that there is no purity in style in architecture. What does he mean? What is purity of style? Are ancient styles or mediaeval types of architecture pure? Because we adopt the composite or the eclectic methods, should we be convicted of following impure styles or architecture?

LUMBER dealers say there is no special significance so far as building probabilities are concerned in the liberal arrivals of soft and hard woods from all contributory sources. Consumers and yard men in both city and country are buying with more liberality than usual and they anticipate a steady demand throughout the winter. As there is no reason for anticipating lower prices, those who need lumber are buying now.

EASTERN nail makers seem to have relinquished all hopes of improving prices or restricting production through organization. Last week a meeting was held at Wheeling, by the Western nail makers and they formed a national (western) association to control the cut nail interests. The great expansion in progress throughout the West makes it possible to effect some satisfactory results, but in the East the chances are slim.

BRICK has been tried as a street pavement in Illinois and answers. Last year 9,000 yards were laid, this year about 12,000 yards at a cost of $4.15 for the brick and the laying. A two ton roller just gives the proper grade and shape, over this two inches of cinder or gravel is placed, then two inches of sand and then the brick. The first course is laid flat, largest dimensions being in direction of the street. The joints must be broken, on this goes an inch of screened sand, on this goes the final layer or edge, the joints of course being broken.

IF investors who put up small houses in blocks, will run about and take bid after bid and then accept the very lowest, find that mean and inferior material has been used when good and servicable material should have been used, they have no one to blame but themselves. In Philadelphia there is less of this mean and cheap work done than elsewhere, but there is even too much done here. The builder of such cheap houses defends himself with the argument that he must live. The safest rule is to employ an honorable contractor and pay a decent price for work. The after repairs on cheap work eat up any miserly advantages gained by beating down prices in the original work.

S. KINGSTON McCAY agent of the Lea Estate, leans apparently to the belief that office building is in danger of being overdone. The apprehension does not seem to be well founded. The offices or nearly all of them in the completed buildings are promptly taken. In some of the buildings nearing completion, they are going fast and the owners do not fear that any will be left on their hands even at the stiff rates charged. The legitimate annual increase in the demand for offices might be very safely put at one thousand. The necessities for additional office room became extremely urgent in this city before they were met and it is safe to assume that a good many additional office buildings will tower unto the sky before competition will set in to the extent of lowering rents.

MANUFACTURERS of building material who turn out stocks in the winter for sale in the spring are in a good many instances halting between two opinions. The point in doubt is as to the extent of building operations next Spring. Slate interests in this city looks hopefully forward but their supplies are large and they do not look for better prices next Spring. Dealers in stone state that extensive preparations have been completed in this State, in Ohio, Connecticut and in Vermont and Maine for larger shipments. The demand for stone for houses and public building construction work has expanded fully 33 1/2 per cent in three years. The manufacturers of and dealers in a multitude of supplies are not intending to rush ahead regardless of experience and prudence, but there is on the other hand an anxiety to be well prepared for the incoming season.

PRESIDENTIAL years have always been feared by business men because of the depressing effects on business. During the four months to Nov 1, the volume of business as shown by the bank clearings in thirty-eight cities were $446,000,000 in excess of the business done during the same four months last year. Business men, railroad builders, ship builders and investors are all now calculating on next year's work, hence the lull spoken of everywhere. The locomotive and car builders have been accumulating business for winter and spring. The Baldwins recently booked an order for thirty engines for the Argentine Republic. Machinery builders are doing more work and most of them have more work in sight than for two years. One local shipyard has contracts let at this time for over seven thousand tons of steel. Should the railroad builders conclude to lay eight thousand miles of new track next year as is not improbable, all iron and steel industries will be stimulated. The country is expanding with greater rapidity than is known. Strange as it may appear an upward tendency in prices is at work.

A GREAT deal of the time of our courts is spent in going over assessment damages for lands taken by railroads. It would be well if there was a short cut for getting through with work of this sort. The employment of lawyers and the long delay incident to judicial process, the summoning of witnesses, the absorption of their valuable time are all contrary to the spirit of the age. In fact the greatest reform of modern times is needed in our judicial system. It is old and full of foginess in methods and rules and does not represent the advanced spirit of energy and enterprise of this age. Business men laugh to themselves when witnessing trials with all their mock dignity and consequential methods. We need a little less dignity in our courts and a little more business and good sense.

Little by little we are reaching metropolitan conditions. The latest step in that direction was taken in Common Councils last week when the Mutual Steam Heating Company of Philadelphia secured an ordinance from Common Councils to lay its pipes. Several miles are to be laid. The city will make some little money out of it.

THE decorators have got out a new color. They call it lobster green.

MAYOR FITLER could remove an obstacle from the pathway of the Elevated Railway scheme by plainly indicating his objections to the measure. The promoters of this worthy scheme are ready and anxious to meet every objection that can be honestly raised. No untenable grounds can be held. The public want the road. The capital is ready. The entire matter has gone beyond the domain of discussion, and important manufacturing and real estate interests await a conclusion.

It is not at all surprising that there should be a gigantic railroad trust proposed to include all the railroads between Chicago and the Rocky Mountains. The surprising part just at present is that a unification of interests is actually possible, but this remains to be seen. The proposition is now before the Western railroad managements. The question will arise whether this or any other possible clearing house arrangement can be entered into which will avoid the provisions of the Railroad laws. The objection point of course is to advance traffic rates as well as to harmonize all schedules. The problem is an intricate and ponderous one. It does not necessarily follow that such an arrangement will unduly advance rates or that it will be oppressive or unjust to shipping interests. New competing lines can be built in the future as in the past to spoil any oppressive combination that might attempt to crowd prices above fair competitive limits.

THERE has been so much recently said and written about "trusts," "combinations," "associations," &c., all generally designated under the title "monopolies," that a short space seems necessary to call attention to and really define the word monopoly—to exact from every thinking person its true sense and, if possible, to keep pure and from being perverted the intrinsic meaning of the word.

Some things are by their very nature monopolies, and could not be otherwise, nor would it be as well if they could. Instance the common interests controlled by the government such as the Postal Service. Other interests as Railroads, Telegraphs &c., are monopolies. They are generally huge corporations, dedicating themselves, it is true, generally to their own interests, but, if they are, or desire to be successful, their interests are the interests of the general public, and therefore the people derive a benefit from them that they would not possess were such corporations weak and unfitted to properly conduct their affairs.

Monopoly, as defined by Webster, is "The sole power of dealing in any species of goods, or of dealing with a country or market, obtained either by engrossing the articles in market by purchase (which is the ordinary "corner" of our day), or by license from government (as in the reign of Queen Elizabeth of England.)

Monopolies, as has been stated by certain writers on economic subjects, are either Natural or Artificial. Natural monopolies are those which are so situated they could not well be managed by persons acting individually, either on account of geographical distribution, or by being governmental institutions: Artificial monopolies are those wrought by artifice to an imitation of the natural inasmuch as they desire to arbitrarily govern themselves and be as free from the restraints of the general laws of reciprocity as possible, and are, like all forced and unnatural states, injurious.

Then again there is another phrase of the question which must be examined. While the "engrossing" of a staple article, either by purchase or influence is a baleful and dangerous tactic which must justly be down-cried and dishonored, the so-called "monopoly" of the fruit of a man's brain or work must be considered in the most direct contra-distinction to this. Instance the righteous "monopoly" our patent laws give for a certain period to the genius of one who confers a direct benefit on mankind by his invention. Although the inventor may be said to have a sole right to the child of his brain, is it not just that he should? Shall he spend his thought, time and money on the perfection of some invention by which all are more or less benefitted without receiving his reward?

Also instance the so-called "monopoly" which a man may have thrust upon him by a discerning public, not exactly by some invention that he may patent, but by bringing about, by his individual efforts and his correct appreciation of the laws governing success, a more superior quality of any article used extensively by the multitude—giving them more satisfaction and a greater value for the cost. Such a person is a real contributor to the happiness, comfort or necessity of his fellow men, and if they desire to adopt his product, even if somewhat to the exclusion of the product of others who have not striven to attain this high standard, he (the producer) is not a monopolizer! By no means. To the contrary he is, or rather his product is, monopolized.

Such a one does not "engross" any staple, or force the people to approach him to their disadvantage. It is true he will solicit their attention if he has any superiority to offer and while his success is his gain, he at the same time benefits all who have dealings with him.

Consumers do not use any one particular manufacturer's product simply from a blind desire to have this one particular make, but, consciously or unconsciously, they come by degrees to realize that a certain article is worthy of their patronage.

There is no denying the fact that there are many monopolistic combinations, to the direct disadvantage of the people, by putting an artificial restraint on many of the commodities of life by forcing them to pay too high prices, or, what amounts to the same thing, by curtailing production. A monopoly that is naturally so, will have no such evil influence or effect, for its own interest is the interest of the public, its patrons. Should it at any time appear to diverge from this line of reciprocity it is not being to optimistical to affirm that the evil will quickly correct itself. Equilibrium is the law of existence, biological, psychological, social and moral. The constant striving to adjust the inner actions to the outer, and vice versa.

To give a good oak color to a pine floor, wash in a solution of one pound of coppers dissolved in one gallon of strong lye.

Recent Decisions.

IN RELATION TO MATTERS CONCERNING REAL ESTATE AND COMMERCIAL LAW.

Decided by the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania.

BROKER'S COMMISSIONS.—A broker's commission for the sale of goods is earned only when he procures a buyer who will comply with the terms and conditions of sale fixed by the principal.

In all action to recover broker's commissions it is of no consequence that the plaintiff is not regularly in business as a broker. In the absence of any express stipulation as to the price of his services he is entitled to receive the usual and customary commissions. Evidence is therefore admissible to show what the usual and customary commissions are. Masterson v. Masterson, May 16 1888.

CO-EXECUTORS.—An agreement between two co-executors that they would share equally the commissions allowed by the court for the settlement of the decedents' estate, has a sufficient consideration to support it, if the letters testamentary were taken out and the responsibility incurred in pursuance of said agreement. The measure of the compensation of executors for their services not only as between them and others interested, but as between themselves, is fixed by their accounts, and when co-executors state and file separate accounts, they are entitled, prima facie, after confirmation of said accounts, to the sums allowed them therein respectively. John v. John, May 23 1888.

DEED.—A deed can only be reformed for fraud, accident, or mistake; when therefore, a bill is filed seeking such reformation, there must be an averment therein of either fraud, accident, or mistake, or in any event facts must be stated from which the fraud, accident or mistake would necessarily be implied. Hollenback's appeal, April 12 1888.

DEBTOR AND CREDITOR.—An agreement between a debtor and creditor for the acceptance of part of a debt, in satisfaction of the whole, is void for want of consideration. But there are many exceptions to the rule. It is otherwise where the amount of the claim is disputed or contingent; where there are mutual unsettled demands; where the creditor receives some new benefit or advantage; or when the agreement is for composition between the debtor and several creditors. Brockley v. Brockley, May 16, 1888.

DEVISE.—A testator by his will devised certain real and personal property to his daughter absolutely. By a codicil he devised in fee, to trustees, the property devised to his daughter, and the trustees were required "to apply all the proceeds and profits thereof for her personal use and support and benefit from time to time, as she may need and require, when by her demanded in writing for herself and her children, but not to be applied or used otherwise."

The daughter was a widow and not in contemplation of marriage. Held—that the trust was passive, and that the cestui que trust was entitled to a conveyance of the property. Rodrigue's appeal. May 23 1888.

FIRE INSURANCE.—A covenant against incumbrances in a policy of fire insurance breaks the moment an incumbrance falls upon the property insured, whether the insured has or has not actual knowledge of said incumbrance.

A policy of insurance contained the covenant that if the property insured should become incumbered by mortgage, judgment or otherwise, then the policy was to be null and void unless the written consent of the company was obtained. Subsequent to the date of the policy a judgment was entered up against the party insured upon a judgment note. A loss having occurred, suit was brought upon the policy, upon the trial the defense was the existence of the judgment aforesaid. The plaintiff testified that he did not know that the judgment had been entered up, until after the fire, and that the same was entered up in violation of his express agreement with the holder thereof. Held, the plaintiff could not recover. Hench v. Ins. Co., May 24 1888.

MECHANICS LIENS.—The Act of June 17 1887 (P. L. 413) entitled "An Act relating to the lien of mechanics and others upon buildings" the first section of which provides that the Act of June 16, 1836 and the Act of April 16 1845 relative to mechanic's liens shall be construed, according to the true intent and meaning thereof to include claims for labor done by mechanics and laborers in the erection or construction of a building, as liens are now allowed for material furnished, is unconstitutional and void. It is obnoxious to Article III. § 6 of the constitution providing that "no law shall be revived, amended, extended or conferred by a reference to its title only." It is also an arrogation by the Legislature of judicial power in the construction of laws, which judicial power is by Article & 2 of the Constitution vested solely in the several courts of the Commonwealth.

Section 2 of the Act requires, among other things, that no material man shall have the right to file a lien unless notice of the amount and character of his claim shall have been given to the owner of the premises within ten days of the time the material was delivered.

Held that the sections of said Act clearly refer only to the class of claimants not covered by the acts of 1836 and 1845, and to whom it was intended to extend the provisions of said acts; and that inasmuch as the present act was unconstitutional and inoperative so to extend said former acts, all its sections were inoperative and were all unconstitutional. Iron Works v. Oil Co., October 4 1888.

All of above cases can be found in 22 W. N. C.

Summary of Last Issue.

The number of operations for which permits were issued and reported in our issue of Dec.
3rd, was 48. The transfers of property numbered 246 amounting to $1,073,625.66 of which $798,550.66 was the cash consideration and $275,075 the mortgage consideration. The ground rents amounted to $4,264. The auction sales aggregated $67,470 with an incumbrance of $8,242.20.

The army of the United States last year cost $23,337,245.11 for its support. In public improvements the war department also expended $9,158,516.63, including rivers and harbors.

EVERY year shows a marked improvement in the manner of decorating business offices and especially so with architects. The latest member of that profession to identify his rooms is Mr. Angus Wade, and great taste has been shown in the selection of furniture, rugs and hangings. We wish all of his brethren who have dingy offices would take a leaf from his book. They will find that it pays.

Our glass manufacturers will let no time go to waste this fall and winter. The stock of window glass is moderate and a heavy demand is looked for all around.

HAS any one connected with the Builders' Exchange or the Real Estate Exchange taken any steps to have our law regulating permits patched up so that for one thing, the estimated value of the proposed structures will be given.

THERE is less intriguing in councils for special bills and private schemes, although there is always some scheming going on, yet there is a greater regard manifested for true public weal. All this is encouraging. It is due in a great measure to the greater intelligence and greater interest manifested by the voters.

ONE Councilman bases his opposition to the elevated road on the grounds that a year or two ago some one offered him a bribe. This is running political virtue into the ground. Must a good measure be defeated because one interested party besought the favor of a Councilman with a bribe?

ALL the world seems to be directing attention to Ship Building. British yards are busier than for years. Italian Ship Building enterprise is aroused. Hamburg companies are building thirty large steamers. The ship yards of Germany are all fully employed and shipping companies are obliged to send orders for ships to England. A Pacific steamship company which has heretofore built all its ships on this side has just sent an order to British yards for a powerful vessel.

ACCORDING to the annual report of the Inter-State commerce commission the railroad mil-age of the United States on the 30th of June 1888 is estimated at 152,781. In 1886 there were constructed 8,471 miles of new road, and in 1887 there were 12,688 miles. The number of corporations represented in the mileage is 1251. Although many of the companies lease and otherwise control and operate many roads belonging to other corporations, but 655 corporations submitted reports up to the above date.

The bearing of these facts on our immediate interests is this. The world is moving out of the old abiding place into new lands and ships are wanted to carry men and things. Our own railroads are busy carrying men and merchandise into new places West and South. This movement is bringing activity to our industries big and little, and our industrial activity is creating a demand for more larger and better houses for merchant prince and workman.
Western architects on the line of Westward travel see and feel the outgoing through better than do we here. Western builders, lumber men, implement and tool makers, and others engaged in furnishing equipments and supplies all feel the pressure of new demands. The Western markets show relatively more activity than Eastern, but we feel the increasing pulse of trade already, in inquiries and orders for winter shipping requirements, merchants, manufacturers, builders, all talk well.

Good! is the involuntary comment made by the average citizen on the program, so far as it was mapped out last week for the coming Williamson Trade School. This school will not, if its curriculum and management can prevent it, turn out boys who are ashamed or unwilling to work. Our public schools and our manual and trade schools are defective in this respect.
Employers all over the United States will watch this great and grand experiment with no small degree of interest. This movement toward the establishment of trade schools has come none too soon, but it must be backed up by an entire change of sentiment on the part of parents of the better class, for it is well known that entirely too much prejudice exists against trade learning. Mothers too generally deprecate such work as the foundry and machine-shop affords as unrefined, dirty and ungentle.
Such people are a curse to their children and really responsible for the yearly crop of gentle loafers who are too lazy to work and who soon drift into crime and end their lives in prisons. There is more room to-day for brains and energy in the mechanical branches than any of the many professions offer. Natural born loafers too indolent for either study or work should be kept out of these trade schools.
Such a course will be productive of much good, as a consequence our best American blood in the course of another decade will be represented in our mechanical trades.

PHILADELPHIA, MONDAY, DEC. 10, 1888.

For the convenience of members of the Master Builders' Exchange, we have secured Box No. 199 at that place, where any communications for publication may be left.

The iron and steel makers are enjoying a season of prosperity and activity if we except the steel rail makers. Doubtless they will soon come in for their full share of business.

One hundred thousand railroaders propose to form a confederation. One hundred and fifty thousand miners have already organized a confederation under nineteen branches or divisions. The Trades Federation has now a membership of over half a million. The iron and steel mills of the United States are practically under the control of 40,000 workmen. Capital is centralizing its power and so is labor. Capital furnishes the example and labor imitates. Yet after all, certain great underlying and generally unobserved laws govern all conditions and all activities into mutually beneficial relations.

The assertion is true that the great majority of the trade associations among business men have been organized, mainly through the influence and exertions of the trade journals in their respective trades and crafts. Trade journals have broken down barriers, stimulated friendships, increased social intercourse and strengthened the entire business interests of the country. What good are trade journals is sometimes asked? Here is one answer. Trade journals have done more than buyers of goods and materials have done to stimulate and diversify manufacturing enterprise to draw out special talent, to open up new fields and to encourage capital and skill to enter them. Oh! we can get along without trade journals, is sometimes remarked, yet not one man in a thousand fails to be both directly and indirectly benefited by them. Trade journalism has gone side by side with the spirit of enterprise. Has encouraged the laggard and has promoted various methods of co-operation by which any given industry or calling has been made more profitable. These are truths which it is unnecessary to repeat to the foremost architects, conveyancers, real estate operators and builders in our own field. Those who do not see benefits in trade journals have yet to learn a lesson which it will be as profitable for them to learn as it has been to those who now stand ahead of them in trade and business.

The unsettled condition of Europe is causing a large outflow of money to the western continent. The United States receives a large portion of it. One estimate which is rather under than over, gives the investments in North America for the past six months at one hundred million dollars. Railroad securities are more favored than any other investments because their value can be readily ascertained at any time, and the management of railroads can not only be watched better than those controlling smaller investments, but it can be supervised by legislative enactments and control. Europe is yearly becoming more and more unsettled. There is an under current of apprehension, that some day all of the enormous mountain of indebtedness that has been accumulating for one or two hundred years or more past, will be wiped out by some sort of a popular revolution, after the manner of the French Revolution of the last century, though not of so bloody a character. This fear may have very little actual foundation and it may have a great deal more than appears on the surface. Whatever the probabilities are, it is safe to say that the opportunities for safe investment in European securities are becoming fewer. All the bankrupt potentates, from Calais to the far Orient are in need of millions to keep up their tottering thrones, by the aid of expensive and danger breeding armies and navies. All this makes possessors of wealth feel like putting their money on this side of the Atlantic, where big rates of interest and sure returns are guaranteed. This anxiety will increase and investments with it. Though we may not be particularly anxious for foreigners of the poorer class to come here and struggle for employment with our own laborers, we are quite willing to receive the francs and thalers and pounds Great Britain and Europe.

All these considerations should be kept in sight, in order to understand the nature of the forces that lie beneath the surface. We are told there will be but little railroad building for the next year or two, limited investments in mining operations and so on, but we answer the reverse will be the case, because foreign capital is getting away from foreign danger and is not particular whether it secures big returns at once out of its American investments.

Money will be plenty, not for speculative purposes, but for legitimate investment. It is fair to presume that all channels of activity will be benefitted. Syndicates have been formed this year to superintend and direct investing operations in industrial directions from railroad down to housebuilding. Bad railroad management, or rascally mining management, or failures in cattle ranch management do not deter foreign investors. They know that bad management can be made good and that the wealth is here and that it can be dug out and carried into their coffers. Our own monetary system is defective, in that government assistance is constantly necessary to keep money easy, but with this foreign source to call upon, any defects in it will not be made apparent so soon as it otherwise would be. Yet even with foreign gold and credit and loans we cannot rely upon an uninterrupted period of industrial prosperity. The aid now coming will continue until an equilibrium is established between American and European conditions. With foreign wars and convulsions always possible, we can rest assured the outflow of European capital will continue a long time. The influence and effect of this movement is far reaching and cannot help greatly stimulating the industrial enterprises at work in all parts of the country.

The Manufacture of Cement in the United States and the Growing Demand for High Class Mortars.

REGULAR MEETING, MARCH 5TH, 1887.—

Mr. R. W. Lesley presented illustrated notes upon this subject.

He said:—When immense buildings of eight, ten and twelve stories high are run up in a single season, the demand for better mortar is making itself felt. In olden times when buildings like the Strasburg Cathedral took centuries to build, lime mortar was good enough, as the weight was superimposed gradually allowing the mortar time to harden. This is no longer the case, and the lime mortar on the inside of thick walls, nearly deprived of air, sets slower than the mortar on the outside where the air reaches, and as weight is piled on, a settling takes place in the part of the wall where the mortar is still soft. This is due to the fact that lime mortar sets mainly through the aid of an external element, viz: carbonic acid gas, which it takes up from the atmosphere slowly. Deprive it of air, and the setting never takes place. To meet this emergency, experienced architects and engineers are looking to cement, not only drying in large tanks or by being molded into bricks, eggs, or other forms, a new stone, in which all the elements are brought in close contact and are in perfect chemical proportion. This artificially made new stone, burnt as it is, at high heat in closed kilns, has every element chemically active, and the clinker represents practically, when properly proportioned chemically, a composition of bi-basic silicate of lime and aluminite of lime. This ground clinker is the Portland cement of commerce, a fixed uniform product sold under a warranty of its strength and fineness, and depending upon the controllable elements of skillful manufacture for its character and uniformity. Until lately it has not been manufactured to any very great extent in this country, owing to the fact that most of the cost being labor it could be made much cheaper abroad. The great trouble of the wet grinding; the acres of ground devoted to the settling tanks for the creasing, 'slurry' or mix; the long time required for drying the paste; the subsequent carrying of the paste to drying floors and its final placing in the kiln, all involved a large outlay for labor, land and interest, which in this country, could not be successfully met to allow competition with the foreign brands.

"To do away with the immense cost of this part of this process was the problem American ingenuity had to solve, and its first efforts in this direction have, some years ago, been referred to at a meeting of this Society. By inventions used by the American Improved Cements Company, and by skillful methods of manufacture at their works at Egypt, Penn., this Company announce that these efforts have been carried on to commercial success, and to-day American Portland cement is actually being sold in this country and in England and Cuba. The material used in its manufacture is a hydraulic limestone or cement rock containing the proper chemical ingredients. The process is briefly as follows: The raw rock is crushed and ground dry. The powder thus formed is run into a mixer, when a small proportion of pitch and water is added. The moistened powder is then passed through a pair of heavy rolls, having matched egg-shaped cavities which would mold it into small eggs, and deliver these latter in front of the kilns, avoiding all handling. These eggs can be used the same day in the kilns if necessary, whereas, under the old process, the same stage of manufacture required weeks, to say nothing of the immense saving in labor, land and interest as above stated. The form of the material, its uniformity in denseness, porosity and size, make it more easily burned, handled, crushed and ground, and make a saving at every stage of the process, while the addition of the pitch aids the uniform burning, and, moreover, by forming pores, through which the moisture in the eggs escapes, prevents them from falling away in the kiln, which they would otherwise do owing to the generation of steam within them, and the formation of a crust on their outer surfaces. This is the point which in the old process prevented the prompt placing of the wet paste in the kilns, and which is here overcome by the use of a combustible. By this process the foreign brands are fairly met in point of price, and repeated tests by leading authorities here and in Europe show that the quality of the cement made is equal to the foreign Portland cement."—Exch.

NEVER compete with a botch and remember that it costs 15 per cent to work up second hand material in wood work.

HOUSE builders have not gone astray in their calculations in Philadelphia for many years past. The chief obstacle in the way of quite a boom in small house building is the difficulty of getting to and from the suburbs quickly. The elevated railroads of New York quadrupled land values in the upper half of the Island in five years.

ANOTHER new industry is seeking a tariff foundation foot-hold in this country viz: the tinplate industry. The United States consumes three out of every four tons of tin plates made in the world and to make this product 70,000 additional men would be employed.

A GOOD many business men take it for granted that the future economic policy of the government is now definitely fixed, that business can now be safely expanded and that enterprise has a clear field. Such confidence is calculated to stimulate trade. It should however, be kept in mind that the people of the country have made a careful study of economic theories and practices and besides they have formed an unalterable determination to curb monopoly and the spirit of monopoly wherever it exists. Every industry that exists by governmental favor will yet have to run the gauntlet of investigation. There is a decidedly preponderating public sentiment in favor of a scaling down of duties as low as they can safely go, and the incoming administration and congress is not likely to misinterpret the sense and determination of the people. On the other hand there never was as compact public sentiment as now exists in favor of such an economic and industrial policy as will develop our home markets, our home industries, our home resources and our own producing and consuming capacity to the highest healthful point. The threatening power of trusts has driven the people to closer inspection and study of policies and systems of government. The changes in duties, and in legislation, the policies to be adopted and the measures that may be taken, will all aim at the one result of cheapening cost of production and cost of living and to the increase of employment for labor and capital.

It is now several weeks since council's committee first called a meeting for the purpose of investigating alleged irregularities in the office of the Building Inspector. The first time appointed for the meeting it was postponed on account of the want of a quorum. The second meeting was attended by the entire committee and the only work accomplished was the taking of testimony, which in no instance implicated the Inspectors and the last meeting was adjourned on account of the absence of three of the committee. If councils really mean business, this should not be, as it leaves room for the public to make the same charge against the investigating committee as has been made against the Inspectors, namely, that of looseness in the manner of attending to their duties. Why not go at the matter in a business like way and get through with it and if evidence can be brought against the men who hold the lives of many citizens in their hands, and such evidence is conclusive and not hearsay, then let it be brought, without delay, so that the Director of Public Safety can purge the office and substitute efficient men?

In all fairness to the Inspectors it is our duty to say that no such testimony has been given as yet. It is a fact incontrovertible, that irregularities exist in this department, but that the fault lies at the door of the Inspectors is entirely another thing. We have no wish to screen any offender, even in the smallest degree and would be among the first to say turn the rascals out if they were found guilty. But facts and figures are too potent to allow of any hasty judgment. With a map of this large city before us we find that it contains about one hundred and thirty square miles of territory or forty-three square miles for each Inspector to cover, which if he did go over its entire area, would take him forty days to do it and in the meantime he would travel the distance from Philadelphia to Chicago, not accounting for the time necessary to examine over two thousand new houses besides numerous other buildings in the course of construction and investigating hundreds of petty complaints many of which are without foundation. To accomplish all this were possible to omnipotence or omnipresence but not to ordinary flesh and blood.

What is needed is more men to do the work, fifty could not do it too well at the present rate of building. It is true a bill was presented to the Legislature for an increase in the number of Inspectors and vetoed by the Governor, on being informed that no more men were required. And here lies the fault, whether it was political chicanery or an error of judgment is a matter of guessing only.

We are indebted to David T. Day, in charge of the United States Geological Survey, of the Division of Mining Statistics and Technology for the fifth volume of the series entitled "The Mineral Resources of the United States." This volume is particularly devoted to the mineral productions of this country for 1887 and shows the features of the mining industries of that period, besides which, it contains important information as to the structural materials and the building operations of thirty-one cities in the United States. For Philadelphia it gives the number of brick, stone and iron buildings erected during the twelve months of 1887, as 7,695, the cost of which being as usual with Philadelphia statistics omitted, owing to our incomplete building law. The number of new buildings erected in the city of New York during the same period, according to the book, was 4,344; Chicago, 4,833; Minneapolis, 4,620; St. Paul, 4,455; Kansas City, 4,408; Brooklyn, 3,875; Baltimore, 2,464; Washington, D. C. 2,251; St. Louis, 2,490; Pittsburgh, 1,910; Boston, 1,848; Detroit, 2,013; Omaha, 2,194; Cleveland, 1,537; Columbus, O., 854; Toledo, O., 716; Topeka, Kan., 645; Savannah, Ga., 218; Richmond, Va., 539; Louisville, Ky., 916; Providence, R. I., 479; Fall River, Mass., 300. The author claims that there was in twenty-five cities, Philadelphia being omitted of course, a total gain over 1886 in the value of new buildings erected during 1887 of $16,554,001, or 2.6 per cent. The book also contains the peculiarities of different sections of the country in the use of building material which makes very interesting reading. It gives the value of building stone quarried in the United States for 1887 as being $25,000,000, an increase over 1886 of $6,000,000, but the author claims that the increase was not that much, because of the low estimate given to the production of 1886. It places the production of native cements for 1887 at 692,744 barrels, valued at $5,186,877. The production of lime in the United States during the same period is given at 46,750,000 barrels, valued at $23,375,000, of which Chester and Montgomery counties, Penna., furnished 1,159,458 barrels. As to brick, the entire product for 1887 in the State of Pennsylvania is given as 308,400,000 bricks, of which, Philadelphia and vicinity made 100,000,000; Allegheny and Pittsburg, 149,700,000. The book is a very creditable affair but we think that more attention should have been given to the compilation of building statistics in this respect it can hardly be taken as authority. We do not desire to be considered as being critical, for we fully comprehend the almost insurmountable difficulties the statistician must meet owing to imperfect building laws.

for the erection of the Congressional Library building as originally designed, the amount of the estimate is $6,003,140, or nearly $2,000,000 more than the amount specified by Congress for the building under a proposition to reduce its size. It is now thought that Congress will authorize the construction of the building as originally intended as to size. The Bernheimer property, west of the Washington Safe Deposit Co., on Penna. avenue has been purchased by that company, and a fire proof structure, similar to the present building will be erected. A like request has been sent to the street and sewer department. The Board of water commissioners, and the Board of park commissioners. If it is concluded to construct such a sewer the general assembly will be petitioned to pass a bill, appropriating sufficient money for the purpose. The proposed sewer commences at the end of the Rattlesnake sewer, or at the beginning of the south long race, and would follow the direction of the race to the foot of Walnut street, where it would empty into the Brandywine. To take all the drainage that is intended to be poured into it would probably require a five-foot sewer. From $80,000 to $500,000 would be required to rebuild this sewer.

Through Pennsylvania.

☞ When any of the following are not stop off towns they will be so designated.

—At Langhorne, Bucks Co., Langhorne Manor is under roof and estimates are being made for the electric plant, interior decorations &c.

—At Norristown, the Thomas Tack mill recently destroyed by fire will be rebuilt as soon as the weather permits. J. T. Thomas of that place is the owner.

—At Darby, Delaware Co., the jury appointed by the courts to view Mill street at Darby creek for the purpose of erecting a bridge has reported favorably.

—At Bangor, Northampton Co., there is some talk of lighting the town with electricity.

—At Carlisle, Cumberland Co., J. F. Maddox has broken ground for the erection of a new dwelling on South Pitt street.

—At Jeannette, Westmoreland Co., Mr. Whistle has bought three lots of the Western Land and Improvement company, and will erect three large store rooms.

—At Wilkesbarre, Luzerne Co., work has begun on the new double tenement house to be erected by attorney G. E. Cohen. All of the contracts are not given out.

—At Mifflintown, Juniata Co., Mr. Guss has purchased three acres of ground adjoining the town and will erect a residence, and a large building to be used as a canning factory, next spring.

—At Media, Delaware Co., the grand jury has reported adversely against the heating of the main building of the almshouse by stoves and recommends that steam heat be introduced.

—At Carbondale, Lackawanna Co., some enterprising citizens have subscribed $50 towards a fund for buying a town clock to be placed in the tower of the new school house nearing completion.

—At Altoona, Blair Co., the subject of block pavements is receiving considerable attention and will probably be an issue at the next local election. Public sentiment is in favor of extensive improvements in the way of good substantial pavements.

—At Scranton, Lackawanna Co., Mr. I. H. Burns has begun the erection of a double dwelling. The improvements to the Third National Bank are about completed. A new hotel will be erected on the corner of Dickinson ave and Green Ridge st.

—At Pittston, Luzerne Co., Messrs. Coggins' & McNally, will erect a dwelling on their lot on Broad street. A number of the lots situated above the new residence of Dr. Mulholland on Broad street have been sold and will be improved by the erection of dwellings the coming year.

—At South Bethlehem, Northampton Co., a new National bank is an assured fact, $50,000 having been subscribed for that purpose. A charter will be applied for and business begun on Jan'y 1, on Third street, near the Post Office. Work has commenced on the new English Lutheran chapel.

—At Gettysburg, Adams Co., the contract for the new memorial chapel, to be erected at the college grounds, has been awarded to Mr. Slagle, the contractor of the new college. The bid was $15,400. The chapel will have a seating capacity of 700, and will have stained glass memorial windows.

—At Harrisburg, an association known as the National Trust and Burial association has purchased a lot of ground 110 by 200 feet on which it is proposed to erect buildings for a large factory to manufacture funeral supplies. One building 60 by 40 feet will be erected at once. The material will be Hummelstown brown stone.

—At Pottstown, Montgomery Co., a free bridge will probably be erected across the ford at the upper end of the town. The courts will decide in a few days. This bridge would be of much benefit to Pottstown, Cedarville, and Pottstown Landing. Cofrode & Saylor of Philadelphia, proprietors of the Philadelphia bridge works have made an estimate.

—At Erie, Erie Co., considerable opposition is being made to the erection of the large school building at a cost of $170,000, and containing 24 rooms, capable of accommodating 1200 students. Many think the most sensible plan would be to erect two or three buildings in different parts of the city, and by this means avoid the danger of putting so many children in one building.

—At Lock Haven, Clinton Co., the central Normal school recently destroyed by fire is to be rebuilt.

—At York, York Co., a new railroad will in all probability be built the coming year by the Baltimore & Harrisburg railroad. The line will run from Banghman Valley Junction to Spring Grove, thence to the Spangler Valley in Jackson township, thence through the valley north of Gettysburg's turnpike to York. This line will give York direct access to Baltimore and the Maryland bituminous coal regions, and also to Philadelphia. The line to Harrisburg will be built as soon as the South Penn road is out of the meshes of the law. The passenger station at York will be erected on the west side of north George st. The road is expected to give quite an impetus to building operations.

—At Reading, Berks Co., at a recent meeting of councils, the report of Carroll P. Bassett, the sanitary engineer employed to prepare a plan for a complete sewage system, was read. This report favored the adoption of a complete system in accordance with the probable growth of the city for the next twenty years. This plan calls for the building of hard brick sewers for storm drainage, with a number of outlets into the Schuylkill river, and small iron pipe sewers to remove house drainage to one point, either Independence island, or the island below the Lancaster bridge, where works will be erected for the disposal of refuse matter after filtering. This building is to cost about $25,000, besides which a wall must be erected about the island, as it is only four feet above low water mark. The plans call for the expenditure of about $475,000.

—At Allentown, Lehigh Co., a special meeting of the Lehigh county agricultural society to be held at the court house at Allentown, Dec. 20, the question will be discussed of the advisability of abandoning the present fair grounds and purchasing a larger site, or enlarging the present grounds. This can be done by the purchase of adjoining property, though the price is high owing to the value of the land as building sites. The design is, if the property is bought, to increase the size of the track and otherwise improve the grounds, putting them on a footing with the best grounds in this and adjacent states. By the time of the next fair, the Lehigh Valley railroad will have a station within two squares of the grounds, and with enlarged grounds the prospect is to increase the receipts from $8,000 to 20,000, at which rate the added grounds can be paid for within a reasonable time. The committee appointed for determining the question consists of Messrs. Hiram J. Schantz, Telghman J. Kline, Frank B. Heller, Isaac Koeder and Joseph Hecker.

The School Board of Radnor at their last meeting discussed the advisability of building the new school house at once. Messrs. Cooper, Gyger, Pugh, Lewis and Montgomery, were the members present, numerous private residences will be started as soon as the weather permits.

The Pennsylvania Iron Works will build a large foundry at 50th street and Merion avenue. It will be constructed of angle iron. Dimensions 75 x 100 feet.

There seems to be no cessation to the number of improvements steadily being made at and about Wayne, on the Pennsylvania Railroad and next Spring work will commence on forty handsome houses by Wendell & Smith, a block of stores and dwellings will be erected opposite the Presbyterian Church on Lancaster avenue by Messrs. Fallon, Guigert and Cooper. A new library building is likely to be commenced soon and St. Mary's Church will be built on a larger scale than was at first proposed. But the largest improvement that is contemplated in that locality, will be the new Episcopal College in which both Messrs. Childs and Drexel are largely interested.

The following circular has been sent to the prominent builders throughout the country by that indefatigable worker in the interest of the National Association of the United States Mr. Wm. H. Sayward, office 184 Devonshire street, Boston Mass, the Secretary. We give the circular in its entirety as it best expresses its purposes. The association now includes twenty-four of the largest cities in its organization and its officers aim to include every city, large and small at present unrepresented.

"I take the liberty of addressing you in common with certain other leading builders of your city, in the interest of the National Association of builders and the work it is doing on behalf of all builders throughout the country.

I do so with the greater freedom because I am certain that we have at heart the interests of the builders of your city quite as much as the interests of the national organization; indeed, unless the interests of local builders in all cities are organized as our animating purpose, the work of the National Association would be valueless.

To come at once to the point, we desire that at our next convention (which takes place in Philadelphia on the second Tuesday of February next and the two succeeding days) there should be some sort of representation from the builders of your city.

We would of course, prefer that the representation should come from a regularly organized exchange or association of builders, but should there be no such society, or should it fail to appoint a representation, then we urgently request you and such other builders as you may succeed in interesting, to appoint representatives to come on to Philadelphia and take part in the convention.

Our urgency for some sort of representation from all of the principal cities of the country rests upon three fundamental points, viz:

1. There are many important subjects of vital consequence to all builders of the United States, reforms in which can only be comprehensively secured through the grouping of their interests in a national association, through which the most thorough consideration may be obtained and concerted action followed in all parts of the country at one and the same time.

2. A national association depends for its best strength upon widespread and thorough representation from all parts of the country and from all cities, whether great or small.

3. The interests of all builders being affected by the action which may be taken by the central body, all builders should in some way be represented in its deliberations, and should contribute their counsel as well as share in the expense attendant upon the work.

These three points we think must be easily recognized by all contracting builders, and we sincerely hope that not only will their potency appeal with sufficient strength to you and others in your city to secure the representation we desire, but that the natural result will be manifested in the establishing or strengthening of an exchange of builders in your locality, through which the national association can best hope to disseminate its views and establish its principles.

Some of the important matters which have so far been taken up and in which the value of that harmony and uniformity of action so vital to the interests of all builders has been completely demonstrated are as follows:

"The Uniform Contract"—adopted by joint committee of our national association and the two national associations of architects, and now in process of introduction throughout the country.

"The Apprenticeship System"—formulated on new lines and the first steps taken for its establishment; to be reinforced from year to year under the direction of special committees.

"The Lien Law"—now under consideration.

"Rules and Conditions for Estimating Work"—partially framed and in process of adoption by local bodies.

"Permanent Arbitration with Employers"—partially considered, but still an open question for discussion at the next convention and following ones.

"Uniformity of Measurements"—under consideration.

"Uniform Size of Brick"—under consideration.

Also to be brought up at the coming convention: "Insurance against accidents to the public;" "Establishment of a department for giving securities for contractors on submitted estimates or upon contracts;" "The establishment of trade schools;" "Profit sharing," etc., etc."

PHILADELPHIA, MONDAY, DEC. 24, 1888.

For the convenience of members of the Master Builders' Exchange, we have secured Box No. 199 at that place, where any communications for publication may be left.

OUR financial institutions under their prudent and far seeing managements are finding profitable employment for nearly every dollar of their available funds.

REAL ESTATE interests incline strongly to the opinion that rapid transit is only a question of time and that suburban values will therefore gradually appreciate. One draw back to locating industrial establishments in the suburbs is that workmen do not live near. The establishment of rapid transit facilities by which it will be as cheap or cheaper for workmen to live three to five miles north of Market street or west of Broad street, is the condition precedent for the erection of industrial concerns that are now hampered and crowded in down town quarters and choked with high floor and steam rentals. There are scores of shop and factory owners who would escape to the suburbs if they could despite all the advantages of banks, mails exchanges, &c., to be enjoyed at present.

Architects' Notes.

Architect Conrad Schroeder, of Scranton, Pa., has drawn plans for a store and office building for L. B. Powell. The cost will be about $25,000.

Angus S. Wade, 20 South Broad street, Philadelphia, has two pairs of houses for Messrs. Van Deusen & Painter, which will be erected at Twenty-first and Tioga streets, at a cost of $7,500 per pair. No contracts have been let.

Wilson Brother & Co., Drexel Building, Philadelphia, have completed plans for a pair of frame houses to be located at Jenkintown, Pa., for Robert P. Nicholson with Whittall, Tatum & Co., this city.

T. P. Chandler, 328 Chestnut street, Philadelphia, has the following work in his office which is being estimated upon: A station at Elmwood, N. Y., on the P & R railroad; a passenger station at Clemontion, N. J., on the same road; also a freight station at Hammoncton, N. J., and an alteration to the office of Joseph S. Patterson, 330 Walnut street.

Romulo Vasquez, Holmesburg, Philadelphia, has now on the boards several stores and dwellings to be located on the Main street near Delaware avenue. They are for George T. Mills and will cost about $7,000 a pair. This is the same operation before reported with a modification of the plans. A pair of houses will also be erected on Union street, to cost $6,000.

T. Frank Miller, 615 Walnut street, Philadelphia, will erect a number of houses in the spring at Agora, for Francis Thole, 909 Walnut street. The operation will be quite extensive and consist of stone, houses costing about $1,500 each, estimates are wanted on mantels, tiles and other materials. The same gentleman has the plans for a residence for D. C. Murtha, at Twenty-second and Tioga streets. Work will be done by the day. All of the minor contracts are not yet let.

James O'Connor, of Buffalo, N. Y., Commissioner of Public Buildings, has drawn plans for a municipal building to be erected on Delaware avenue. The frontage will be 93 feet, the material brick and stone, fire proof throughout. It will contain all the modern improvements and appliances. The cost will be about $90,000.

A. Druiding, architect, Metropolitan Block, cor La Salle and Randolph streets, Room 27, Chicago, Ill., has just finished plans for a Catholic Church to be erected at West Brother-town, Calumet Co., Wisconsin. Mr. Deery will divide his time between the two cities, as he has a large amount of work in and about New York city. One of his most important operations being the Saint Ambrose Church and parsonage, to be erected at the corner of Tompkins and De Kalb avenues, Brooklyn, L. I. No contracts have been awarded. The estimated cost is about $100,000. The plans are now under way for two charitable institutions near New York City, and estimates will be received for the same in the early spring.

The new theatre, which is to be located at Broad and Fairmount avenue, will be started in the spring, although all parties concerned are exceedingly reticent and will give no information. A SUPERIOR SUBSTITUTE FOR COMMON PLASTER

233 AND 235 NORTH 23d STREET, PHILADELPHIA, PA.

BUILDERS' EXCHANGE, PITTSBURG, PA.

ADAMANT is a cement or artificial stone, capable of resisting all ordinary casualties so disastrous to common Plaster.

ADAMANT adheres firmly to lath, brick, stone or iron, lasting as long as the building without even cracking.

ADAMANT is lighter than lime-plaster; it does not shrink, and is impermeable to noxious gases or disease germs.

ADAMANT is valuable for setting tiles and slabs because of its remarkable adhesive properties.

ADAMANT is cooler in summer and warmer in winter.

ADAMANT excludes all dampness.

ADAMANT is fire-proof.

ADAMANT saves time and expense, as carpenters can follow plasterers in twelve hours and need not move out while the plastering is going on.

ADAMANT is preferred by painters on account of its smooth surface, and not possessing any ingredient to damage the color, as in lime-mortar.

The growing wealth of the country, and the more general art education of the people have created a demand and appreciation for better and more elaborate dwellings, which has afforded scope for well-trained architects. Unfortunately the impression is abroad that Architects quite often lead clients to extravagant and unlooked for expense. I therefore GUARANTEE the cost of all work. When I design a $10,000 house, I mean that it shall cost no more than that amount, and will furnish a reliable builder and let the contract for that amount or less, before I make any charge for services.

Refers with permission to William M. Singler,
Proprietor of Phila. "Record."

PHILADELPHIA, MONDAY, DEC. 31, 1888.

For the convenience of members of the Master Builders' Exchange, we have secured Box No. 199 at that place, where any communications for publication may be left.

THE present number of THE REAL ESTATE RECORD completes the third volume; with the next issue it will enter into the fourth year of its existence. Hereafter the day of publication will be Wednesdays instead of Mondays, as heretofore. This change will enable us to present later building news. Heretofore unavoidable delays have been occasioned by the non-arrival of important mail matter on Saturday, and believing that late building news was preferable to an early paper, we have always kept our columns open for news, up to the latest minute possible. We hope to be on time hereafter on the day of publication.

NEARLY all of our old builders intend to engage actively in building operations next year.

WILLIAM WORTH CARLIN, the recently elected President of the Western Association of Architects, is only 38 years of age.

If straws point right, an increase in small house building will take place next year throughout the country.

WE are entering a new era of river bridge building. A dozen are projected across the Mississippi, a half dozen across the Missouri, there are four across the Ohio and one that will be an engineering marvel at New York. Work has just begun on a bridge across the Hudson, whose span will be 1620 feet. The Poughkeepsie bridge is just completed. The bridge builders will stop at nothing.

BUILDING material of every kind is more carefully inspected than years ago. For a while deterioration of quality was practiced where possible, until the limit was reached. Since then a re-action has set in and now quality, make, brand, are all important, from roofing material to the cellar stone.

BUSINESS men feel a strong under-current of returning commercial activity. For one year production has been curtailed. Trade combinations have multiplied, competition has been kept under some sort of control. The unexpected sense of the manufacturing and commercial world is that it is about time to let enterprise have a free rein. This means over production and all the train of inevitable consequences. Every producer is waiting for the word "go." Jobbers have their travelers scouring the country. Managers of industries are prying every where to catch sight of opportunities. Productive capacity has been increased and every thing is ready for the grand scramble.

CONTRACTORS and others engaged in night work will soon have an opportunity of using a very powerful light equal in power to the electric light but cheaper. It has two cylinders, one of oil and one of water, both filled from the bottom which naturally compresses the air at the top. The air is permitted to escape through a jet and the oil is turned on. The spray of oil and air is lighted. There is a coil of pipe just above the flame communicating with the water cylinder. When this coil is heated the water is permitted to pass through and is vaporized and enters the jet in place of the compressed air which is turned off. The lamp is portable.

THAT Philadelphia possesses nearly all the requisites and elements for stupendous growth as a manufacturing and commercial centre cannot be gainsaid by any careful observer of her progress during the past ten years. There may be room for saying that if a younger class of men had been in control more progress would have been made, that the old conservative element has not taken full advantage of passing opportunities, and that competing cities have secured trade which could have been centred here. It might also be said that the business men have stood back to let the mere politicians with only selfish motives take control, that our rich financial institutions might have made our city a greater financial centre by a liberal policy of loaning money beyond the borders of the state as is done by the financiers of New York and Boston. Whatever grounds for such reflections there may have been in the past, it is evident that inviting opportunities and inducements are now presented for Philadelphia capital, enterprise and skill, to depart from the conservatism of the past and enter upon a wider field. Boston represents railroad wealth very largely. New York shipping wealth and Philadelphia shop wealth. To-day the Delaware river ship yards have in sight from one to two years work. Never in our history has there been as much tonnage wanted for coast-wise and ocean requirements as now. When the river Islands are removed and a deep harbor established, the vessels of the world will have a better chance to load and unload their wealth when we can profit by it. Speckles sees his opportunity. The Pennsylvania R. R. Co., is credited with a scheme looking to establishing extensive wharf and shipping facilities above Port Richmond. Heavy manufacturing interests have been spying about Bordertown for a place to locate. Sites along the Delaware River between Frankford and Bristol have been looked at. Philadelphia has been tentatively decided as the terminal point of one or two ship lines that will cover Gulf and Central and South American commercial centres. The industrial expansion in progress in the South means a reflected expansion in industrial activity here. Our tradesmen and jobbers know what this means for every new wheel South means a spoke for Philadelphia.

But no ordinary spirit of enterprise will be equal to the emergency. Commercial centres are reaching out in competition with us. The opportunities within our grasp must be understood. Business men must come to the front in municipal councils, broad minded financiers should hold the purse strings of our monied institutions, railroad managers with some other than purely selfish instincts should have their thumbs on the pulses in the arteries of trade. Our commercial organizations should have new life infused into them. Philadelphia being a grand manufacturing centre, should be, and can be made a great distributing centre, not only for the goods made within its own limits, but of products from without. But a broader municipal policy must prevail. Quicker methods of doing business are needed. The commercial sentiment of the city needs organization, so that it can be as united and as powerful and as able to speak and act effectively, for Philadelphia's commercial interests, as the Union League in former days was able to speak and act and mould official and public opinion politically. A great step ought to be taken, but it cannot be taken by the venerable octogenarians who have fought their battles and have run their appointed course. The future of Philadelphia must be worked out by the younger men.

AN architect in New York, writing on the needs of the proposed North River bridge, says that the 900 trains and 50,000 passengers daily arriving at the terminus in New Jersey, will be doubled in ten years, when the proposed bridge will be completed if undertaken.

THE two-legged American hog, although not exactly an entire stranger has been heretofore rather a scarcity than otherwise, but now there can be no question that this peculiar species of the genus man is rapidly increasing, and the only question open for discussion is whether his swinish selfishness and disgusting intrusiveness is a result of inheritance, or is caused by climatic influences, or the result of example. His filthy peculiarities and arrogant assumption of the right to annoy the helpless, is met everywhere. His utter disregard of that nice consideration always due to women, and which has ever since the early days of our National existence been the distinguishing characteristic of the American males, and which made every American a gentleman, is also noticeable everywhere. Gallantry to women, at one time, was strictly an American characteristic, and, indeed, it was so much the rule at one time in America, that the man who was ungallant, whether high or low born, was considered a brute, but the days of gallantry are rapidly waning, and too many men have grown to regard imperative rules rather than that nice sense of appreciation of the rights and comforts of others, which to every true man is at all times stronger than rule. The disgusting spectacle of from six to a dozen well dressed men puffing away at as many segars in a street car in the presence of a half dozen choking, vomiting ladies can be seen any Sunday evening on the night cars of the Tenth and Eleventh Street Passenger Railway Line. Most of these young fellows have the outward appearance of gentlemen, most of them have just left young ladies to whom they are paying attentions. Most of them would be "fighting mad" were they in company with their mothers, sisters, or girls, and the other fellows attempted to smoke, but their own brazen faced impudence they seem to think perfectly allowable and justifiable. They inflict misery and discomfort upon other men's mothers and sisters with a bravado truly astonishing; they are human-hogs, and they can't help it, poor fellows.

THE influences of accumulated capital upon the prosperity of the country has never been as clearly and as fully demonstrated as during the past year or two. It is more directly comparable in its influence to a reservoir of a large volume of water at an elevation. The pressure increases with height and depth of water. So it is with capital. The great industries, the great railway construction, the vast mining enterprises, the enormous commercial activity and all the active agencies that have made this country what it is, are in a large measure due to the large accumulations of capital going on quietly year after year. The full measure of its influence is now only beginning to be felt. In years past when panics and depressions came and went with a sort of periodic regularity, economists and writers endeavored to account for them by this, that, and the other theory, never stopping to think that the one great cause was the absence of a sufficient volume of capital. Just as a mechanic would to day account for the irregularity or deficiency of action in a steam engine from a deficient supply of steam. The business men of to-day, now, more clearly understand what one of the vital conditions of success and prosperity is. For the past two or three years there has been a steady outflow of capital from foreign and eastern sources to southern and western markets, and the investments that have been made have all, or nearly all, returned their owners all they could have expected. Opportunities for putting money out to advantage are multiplying faster than they were ever known to, and capital is in fact gathering itself together in this new region of country. Farmers have been large borrowers, so have cotton planters, and while the interest they have been obliged to pay has been a sort of tax upon their productive energy, yet it has been a tax which it has paid to pay. This outflow of capital will naturally increase, and the returns will be more frequent. The improved systems of doing business and the greater ability of borrowers to return borrowed money, all unite to bring about a very rapid circulation. Two or three times a year we see a rapid return flow of money from Western to Eastern centers. It no sooner arrives at home than some new cause sends it out on its mission of reproduction.

It is to this fact that we must attribute very much of the steadiness of the prosperity that is observable throughout the West. Merchants, builders, manufacturers and men in all kinds of business feel the stimulus and the confidence and the encouragement which they have not felt before. There is a certainty in business that is calculated to strengthen confidence. It is not by any means true that every incompetent man can succeed, nor ought it to be true; but there are better opportunities for genius, for energy, and for thrift, and for persons to achieve success, than there ever has been in the history of the country. The builders and manufacturers of material, and the architects throughout the South, all feel that there are better opportunities coming than we have ever had. Land is not appreciating in value in a speculative, but in a legitimate way. It improves in value simply because there are more and better markets for the sale of the products of labor of all kinds. This improvement must continue, and opportunities for investment must multiply, as long as the masses of the people have work and good pay. So far as ordinary observation can see there are no causes at work to break up the harmony that exists. The only troublesome factor is the deficiency of our financial system. A new monetary system is imperatively demanded. Bankers know it, and talk about it, but do not see how to remedy what is wrong. The wisdom of the country will no doubt be equal to this emergency, and in the next two or three years as the volume of circulation decreases the people will bring about such legislation as will provide us with a sufficient monetary system, on a basis other than that of the Nation's indebtedness.

THE great competition for the rebuilding of the front of the Milan cathedral has terminated in the award of the first prize, eight thousand dollars in money, to Signor Guiseppe Brentano, of Milan.

A New Cement.

A London, Eng., paper gives an account of a new building cement which must prove invaluable for repairing heavy masonry supporting machinery or large buildings. The powder which forms the basis of the cement is composed of two parts oxide of zinc, two of crushed hard limestone and one of pulverized grit, together with a certain proportion of oil as a coloring agent. The liquid with which this powder is to be mixed consists of a saturated solution of six parts of zinc in commercial muriatic acid, to which is added one part of salammnia; this solution is diluted with two-thirds of its volume in water. A mixture of one pound of the powder to two and one-half pints of the liquid forms a cement which hardens quickly and is of great strength.

India-Rubber Pavement.

The authorities of the city of Basle, says the India-rubber and Gutta-percha Journal intend repaving their principal thoroughfares, and are now considering the material best suited for the purpose. In one street, a trial was given to wool pavement, but somehow it does not give satisfaction. The decision, therefore, turns upon Asphalt or India-rubber. The latter was invented by the German engineer, Busse, in Linden, near Hanover, and was first practically used about fifteen months ago for paving the roadway over the Goethe bridge in Hanover, which required about 100 square meters of material. This first experiment proved so successful that during the present year another street in Hanover was paved with India-rubber to the extent of 1500 square meters. Berlin is already considering the advisability of availing itself of the same pavement, and has given it a fair trial by laying it down over a considerable distance near the Lutzow bank, which example is being followed by Hamburg. The India-rubber pavement is said to combine great elasticity with the hardness of stone, to be completely noiseless, and to suffer neither from cold nor hot weather. Moreover, it is not slippery, like asphalt, and is more durable.—Invention.

A Strong Recommendation.

So much depends upon the lasting quality of mortar color that it is poor economy to experiment with new makes, when the old reliables can be so easily obtained. A mortar color to properly fill the bill should be rich in color, thoroughly anti-fading and prepared with care in order that subsequent orders for the same job may not differ in the slightest from the first. Here is a far away recommendation, sent unsolicited to Messrs. Samuel H. French & Co., corner York avenue and Callowly street, Philadelphia, as to the Peerless Mortar Colors. "Good wine needs no bush," and really the national reputation the Peerless Colors have earned for themselves seems to make commendation from any one superfluous.

MESSRS. SAMUEL H. FRENCH & CO.:

ST. PAUL, MINN., Oct. 30, 1885.

Dear Sirs:—We have used the "Peerless Red" in laying the pressed brick in the Ryan Hotel of this city, the Spencer Block and Chamber of Commerce, Duluth, and several other large contracts, and have found it the most economical, durable and workable of anything that we have tried heretofore in the line of coloring mortar for a red joint.

HENNESSY BROS., AGNEW & COX, Contractors.

The statement that a 12x12 in beam, built up of 2x12 planks spiked together, is stronger than a 12x12 inch solid timber, will strike a novice as exceedingly absurd. An authority on the subject says every millwright and carpenter knows that it is so, whether he ever tested it by actual experience or not. The inexperienced will fail to see why a timber will be stronger simply because the adjacent vertical longitudinal portions of the wood have been separated by a saw, and if this were the only thing about it, it would not be stronger, but the old principle that a chain is no stronger than its weakest link comes into consideration. Most timbers have knots in them, or are sawed at an angle to the grain, so that they will split diagonally under a comparatively light load. In a built up timber no large knots can weaken the beam except so much of it as is composed of one plank, and planks whose grain runs diagonally will be strengthened by the other pieces spiked to it.—Exchange.

Recent Decisions.

IN RELATION TO MATTERS CONCERNING REAL ESTATE AND COMMERCIAL LAW.

Decided by the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania.

ANTE-NUPITAL AGREEMENT.—An ante-nuptial agreement is not a case of contract between parties dealing at arms' length, nor of a confidential relation such that relief can only be obtained by an affirmative and adverse proceeding and decree setting it aside, on the ground of actual fraud. The relation is one of such extreme mutual confidence that a special duty of full disclosure arises, which has no place in the ordinary contractual relation.

An ante-nuptial release of dower does not require proof of consideration, the subsequent marriage is in itself sufficient consideration. Shea's Appeal, April 12, 1888.

DECEDENTS' ESTATE. In a distribution among creditors of the proceeds of a sheriff's sale, where the lien of the first creditor is superior to that of the second, but inferior to that of the third, the first creditor will take the fund, because of his superiority to the second by reason of the superiority of the second over the third.

A died seized of real estate subject to a mechanic's lien and a subsequent mortgage. The widow's exemption was charged upon the premises. The property having been sold under writs of levari facias, issued upon the mechanic's lien and the mortgage, and the proceeds paid into court for distribution; it was admitted that the mechanic's lien had priority to the mortgage, but was postponed to the widow's exemption. It was also admitted that the mortgage had superiority over the widow's exemption, but was postponed to the mechanic's lien.

Held—That in distributing the fund, the mechanic's lien was entitled to priority over both the mortgage and the widow's exemption. Miller's Appeal, May 22, 1888.

DOWER.—When a testator devises a share of his estate to his widow for her life, with a remainder over, and further orders and directs that his executors shall sell and dispose of his estate, real and personal; the direction to sell is a conversion of all his estate into personality, and precludes the idea that he intended to charge the devise to his widow upon his real estate. When, in the above case, the widow elects to take against the will, and the executors subsequently contract to sell testator's realty to A, who transfers the contract to B, to whom the executors make an absolute deed, without condition. B takes an unconditional fee, subject, however, to the widow's statutory dower, or life estate, in one-third of the premises, which life estate expires at her death, and any contract between A and B as to the widow's dower is immaterial. Sullivan v. Kieffer, May 24, 1888.

ASSIGNMENT FOR BENEFIT OF CREDITORS.—Commissions to a party acting in a fiduciary capacity, are allowed only as a compensation for services rendered in the collection or custody of funds actually received. The fact that an assignee for the benefit of creditors has the power to convert the whole assigned estate into money, and refrains from so converting a part thereof, at the request of the assignor, in order to enable him to save a portion of his property, does not entitle such assignee to commissions upon the value of that portion of the property which does not actually come into his hands. He is trustee both for assignor and creditors, and it is his duty to act with a conscientious regard for the interest of both. Horner's Appeal, May 23, 1888.

MORTGAGE.—When in an action upon a purchase money mortgage, the defence set up is a failure of consideration, owing to the existence of an easement over the land conveyed, it is a question for the jury whether or not, at the time of the purchase, the land was openly and plainly affected by the easement.

In the absence of any express agreement or covenant relating thereto, the existence of the easement would not amount to a breach of the ordinary covenant against encumbrances, if it were so openly and plainly existing on the land. If, on the contrary, it were not so plainly and openly existing, its existence would amount to a breach of such contract. Ely v. Elder, May 29, 1888.

Through New Jersey.

At Asbury Park, Monmouth Co., two fine bank buildings are being erected.

At Pleasantville, Atlantic Co., the new hall is finished, and will be fitted up with nearly five hundred opera chairs.

At Clementon, Camden Co., the Philadelphia & Atlantic City Railroad Company has bought a site and will erect a new station.

At Long Branch, Monmouth Co., James Cloughly & Sons have received from Norman L. Munro, the publisher of New York City, the contract to erect three dwellings, at a cost of $4,500 each.

At Moorestown, Burlington Co., ground has been broken by John S. Rogers for the erection of three houses. A number of lots have been purchased by George C. Henszey, which will probably be improved.

At Hammonton the lately arrived English immigrants have bought land and will erect buildings. W. L. Price of Ohio, has purchased six five-acre farms, which will be fitted up for poultry ranches. Mr. Price also purchased two town lots.

At Magnolia, Camden Co., a new residence is being erected for Mrs. Rea of Philadelphia, by Contractor Valentine. The railroad siding is to be moved further down, and a new freight house erected in the spring.

At Camden, according to Building Inspector Cole's report, the following building operations have taken place during the past year: From January 1st last, there have been erected in the city 104 three-story and 538 two-story brick dwelling houses, two three-story stone houses, two three-story frame buildings, fifty-seven two-story frame buildings, eleven brick manufactories, three frame manufactories, fifty-two one-story brick buildings, one brick observatory, four one-story brick buildings, thirty-one frame stables, twelve brick stables, two spar sheds, one glass house, one brick chapel, one brick church, one brick school house, one stone church, two frame churches, 123 alterations and additions, making a total of 949 permits issued. "The operations in building," the report goes on to say, "during last year have not been so extensive as in the two previous years of my official term, but the size and character of many of the buildings, both public and private have been large and costly, and in the aggregate the addition to the taxables of the city are fully up to the previous years. In my judgment they will reach nearly or quite $800,000."

At Bordentown, Burlington Co., the demand for building lots near the shirt factory is so great that W. R. Flynn and P. Martin, owners of the Wood plantation, have determined to continue Ann street through the tract, and to stake of a number of building lots.

At Atlantic City titles have been passed for the property between Albany and Annapolis avenues, and the South Atlantic City Branch of the Camden & Atlantic Railroad and the ocean, containing an area of 1350 feet by 500 feet. A building in the shape of a casino, with sun parlors, will be erected.

At Woolbury, Gloucester Co., at a meeting of the Board of Trade, steps were taken to offer inducements to manufacturing firms to settle there. The City Council will probably exempt the property from taxation on which the Wells, Hoag Manufacturing Co., purpose erecting its factory.

At Hoboken, a brick and terra cotta church will be erected, at a cost of $13,000, not including stained glass, altars, etc. Sheridan Manners of Jersey City is the architect. Mr. Manners is also the architect for St. Bridget's Church at Jersey City. The cost of this building will be $18,900.

At Gloucester, Camden Co., there is some talk of organizing a trust and title company. The Reading Railroad Company will erect new freight sheds. It begins to look as if no action would be taken at the January meeting of Council with reference to the opening of Monmouth street. The commissioners have not yet published their notices, and they will not now have time to do so before next Thursday night, when the Council meets. Mr. Chambers, the owner of the Cottage property on Broadway, through which the projected street is to run, says that he will not continue his proposition much longer, but will proceed soon to lay the plot out on its present lines. His intention is to attach the brick stable on Monmouth street to the dwelling, and throw out building lots on the present line of that street.

There is a very general desire that the street should be opened, and it is understood that a majority of the Council favor it, but for some unexplained reason, the commissioners have failed to act thus far, and it looks as if the scheme would fall through.

At Newark, Essex Co., at a recent meeting of Common Council a report was received from the Committee on New Water Supply. The report favors the plans submitted by the North Jersey Water Company. This plan provides for the construction by the company of all dams and a storage reservoir in the Pequannock river watershed, the laying of a steel pipe line to the city and the delivery of 25,000,000 gallons of water daily. The plan further contemplates the completion of the work within eighteen months, at the end of which time the city of Newark can become the owner of the entire plant with guarantee title, for the sum of $3,950,000.—Building permits have been granted to the Board of Education owner, for a two-story brick school house at Marshall street and Coe Place.—Mr. Chas. P. Baldwin, 751 Broad street, that place, architect. Also Courvovsier, Wilcox Mfg Co., owners, for two-story frame factory. —At Glenolden, Delaware Co., J. V. Meckert has broken ground for a new residence.

—At Lelanton, Lehigh Co., the plans have been completed for the new steel works along the Union Canal west of Tenth street.

—At Swarthmore, Delaware Co., F. J. Palmer has purchased a lot on which he will have a residence erected in the Spring.

—At Embreeville, Chester Co., an iron bridge will be built across the Brandywine by the Wilmington & Northern Railroad Co.

—At Uniontown, Fayette Co., Mr. C. W. Pyle has purchased a lot, and has broken ground for a new residence.

—At Trevoze, Bucks Co., the building now used as a depot by the Bound Brook Railroad will be transferred to the other side of the track and a larger building erected in its stead with residence and telegraph office attached.

—At Bedminster, Bucks Co., steps are being taken to form a company to build a turnpike from the Easton road to Bedminster, and probably to connect with the Souderton and Dublin pike. If this is done it would make a direct road from the Easton road to Souderton, a distance of sixteen miles.

—At York, York Co., the Baltimore & Harrisburg Railroad Co., has been inspecting a site on the land of the West End Improvement Co., for a depot and is much impressed with its availability. Nothing definite has been determined upon, but there seems a strong probability that the West End people will secure the depot.

—At Rouseville, Venango Co., Messrs Ludwig Mayer of Oil City, same county, and L. H. Willets, of Rouseville, have plotted their recent purchase at that place into forty-three desirable lots, which they purpose selling for building purposes. A number of fine sites have been reserved for manufacturing purposes and have excellent water and railroad facilities.

—At Erie, Erie Co., in spite of the legal complications, Mr. Shenk, the contractor keeps steadily at work on the new school house. The prevailing opinion seems to be that work has progressed too far to be interfered with at this late date. The building boom which started so briskly about three years ago has been kept up at an encouraging rate and all residents say more buildings went up in Erie within the past three years than for many years previous. The cold weather has put a temporary stop to the work, although a great many buildings are now in course of construction. The outlook for next season is favorable and the vacant fields on the east and west sides will be dotted with beautiful cottages and occupied before Christmas, 1899. If councils would improve the streets of the outskirts and have sewers put in, the city would be greatly benefited. The removal of the shops from the heart of the city has caused the sudden but substantial boom, and the employees are now building their own homes near the shops instead of living in tenement houses.—August Foht, James C. Osborne, Hirt & Leenuhuist, E. S. Rockafeller, M. Griswold, Wm. Bell, J. W. Wetmore, Thos. Robinson, Ernest Ludwig, Joseph McCarter, Michael Hain and W. S. Heffern, have taken out building permits the past week.

—At Ridley Park, Delaware Co., East Trainer street is being opened, by which means many additional building lots will be put upon the market. The opening of Ridley avenue to Moores Station is now under consideration.

—At Media, Delaware Co., work has begun on fourteen ten room cottages on South avenue between Washington and Jefferson streets. The contractor is George C. Hoopes, of Media. Six of these houses have already been sold as follows: Two to Messrs Carey & Brother, plumbers and tinsmiths of Media; one to George C. Hoopes, one to C. K. Neuman, one to Edward H. Hall, Esq., and the other to Messrs. Haines and Williams, of Media.

—At Pittsburg, Jos. Follmer will erect a two-story brick dwelling at a cost of $2,300.—A two-story slate roof brick stable will be erected for Henry Meller, by Schote & Meyer builders, at a cost of $2,000. Mr. Meller will also erect a three-story store and dwelling at a cost of $6,000.—A brick warehouse will be erected by W. A. Hoveler to cost $4,500.—Five brick and frame two-story dwellings will be erected by W. F. Casey at a cost of $2,800 each.—W. S. Fraser, Seventh street and Penn avenue, is the architect for a three-story brick store and office for Denholm Bros., the cost will be $2,881.—C. Lauer is the builder for a dwelling for Mrs. Frances Friedel to cost $3,000.—Ahlborn & Neckerman will erect an iron clad one-story axle works, 70 by 80 feet to cost $2,500.—The Iron City Foundry Co., will erect a one-story iron clad manufactory 60 by 200 feet, iron roof, to cost $5,000, Boyd & Beatty are the builders.

—At Reading, Berks Co., William Griscow has bought a plot of ground on the Hill road, between Perkiomen avenue and Clymer street. It has a frontage of 117 feet and a depth of nearly 200 feet. Mr. Griscow will build a handsome residence on the plot in the spring. Mr. Lewis Kremp has purchased Mt. Penn Park, from the Reading Brewing Company for $16,000. There are five acres and fifty-five perches in the plot. Mr. Kremp has not yet decided what he will do with it, but thinks something of cutting it up into building lots. The project of encircling Mount Penn with a gravity railroad is again meeting with considerable progress. A number of meetings have been held, and the ground gone over, surveys made, and those with capital to invest have been sounded. The result has been so favorable that it is proposed to run an inclined plane to the Black Spot, and from thence to run a gravity road down and around the mountain for a distance of eight or ten miles to the place of starting, passing on the way all the most attractive points and taking in many of the magnificent views which the mountain affords. The road will traverse the northeast slope of the mountain, giving views of Antietam lake and the adjacent country and the mountainous regions of Alsace, and will pass in close proximity to Reiningers', Steigerwald's farm, Kuechler's Roost, and will approach the city on the return trip either by way of Denzler's tavern or by a route near the Hill road. The right of way over nearly the entire route has been secured, and if no serious impediment is encountered the work is likely to be begun next season. Among those foremost in the enterprise are Albert Thalheimer, Thomas P. Merritt and John B. Miller. It is estimated that during the year nearly 450 buildings of various kinds have been erected in this city. It has been one of the briskest seasons in Reading's history. Every street and square shows signs of improvement. The city is stretching out in all directions. The number includes 363 2-story dwellings and 44 3-story. The remainder consists of industrial establishments, etc.

Building Notes.

The South Presbyterian Church, the Rev. William M. Ledwith, pastor, intend to build an annex to their church.

Arthur H. Williams & Son, 402 Tenor Place, have the contract for the addition to the abattoir.

The late William Wilson has bequeathed $7,000 to the Presbyterian Orphanage for the erection of a building, to be known as the Mary MacNair Memorial.

A number of properties have been bought by the Real Estate Investment Co., in the neighborhood of Twelfth and Locust streets, and the probabilities are that a market house will be erected there.

Samuel G. Diehl, 731 Walnut street, has just consummated the sale of the properties located at Nos. 931, 933, 935 and 937 Market street, for a consideration of $230,000. The purchaser was William Weightman, and it is his intention to erect several fine store buildings on that site as soon as possession can be obtained.

Messrs. Nixon & Zimmerman having secured a renewal of their leases of the Chestnut Street Theatre and Chestnut Street Opera House for ten years, have entirely abandoned the project of erecting a new theatre as before reported. The site had been selected, and negotiations for the land were nearly completed when the owners of the two theatres entered into satisfactory arrangements with Messrs. Nixon and Zimmerman, under which they are to remain.

The United Adamant Plaster Company for the States of Maryland, Virginia and Delaware, and the District of Columbia, has been formed in this city, and is composed of Philadelphia capitalists. P. W. Lobb is the president, N. H. Culver, secretary, and Dr. G. W. Slonaker, treasurer. The office is at 10 S. Holliday street, Baltimore, Md., and the factory at Locust Point, the same place. Large orders are now on hand.

The National Association of Master Builders, which meets in this city during February, will be handsomely entertained by the Exchange of this city. Extensive preparations are now being made, and it is the expectation to make this convention a grand success. Horticultural Hall has been secured as well as the Lecture Room of the Franklin Institute, and about six hundred prominent builders from all over the country have been invited. A banquet will be held at the close of the convention. John S. Stevens, president of the National Convention and president of the Philadelphia Exchange, will make the opening address on February 12th. A number of prominent men of this and other cities will speak on various subjects of interest to those connected with this branch of trade.
